RASKOB UPHELD IN SHOUSE TALK AT PEACE FEAST

Chairman Denies Quitting at Harmony Dinner of Democrats.

REPUBLICAN PROGRAM OF CENTRALIZING HIT

Finance Chief Sees U. S. Revolt Unless State Rights Grow.

PEACE WITHIN PARTY IS DECLARED BIG AIM

Headquarters Here Will Keep Hands Off in Matters of Policy, Promise.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

Assurance that Chairman John J. Raskob has not a selfish interest in the world in his effort to rebuild the Democratic party was given by Jouett Shouse at the dinner given in his honor last night by the Jefferson Democratic Association of the District.

There were more than 400 persons at the dinner at the Mayflower Hotel. Some 150 reservations were handled at the last moment.

Although sponsored by the local organization of which Col. Robert H. Harper is president, the dinner drew Democrats from throughout the country and was intended to launch the great Raskob upbuilding program.

The diminutive chairman was cheered at every mention of his name and when it came his time to speak said he hoped his presence set at rest all doubts as to his continuance as national chairman.

Mrs. Wilson Is Present.

At the speaker's table with him were Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, John J. Costello, District national committeeman; Senator Joe Robinson, Senate Democratic leader, and others.

It was announced that Mrs. Nellie T. Ross, former Governor of Wyoming, is to serve as vice chairman of the upbuilding organization. The attendance with many men and women of Washington was representative of Democracy as a whole, except the strict Heflin-Simmons-Cannon faction. Such drys were present as Senator Sheppard, of Texas, author of the eighteenth amendment.

The mere mention by Representative Joe Byrnes, of Tennessee, of "our leader in the recent campaign" brought the diners to their feet cheering. This was the only reference to Gov. Smith.

But the venerable Senator Overman, of North Carolina, took it up and as the last speaker, touched a match to the gathering.

Byrnes' reference did not "make any cold shivers race up my spine," he declared. "I am a Democrat and an unterrified one; Defeat does not discourage me. I am for harmony. I am for unity, but unity with courage." His colleague, Senator Simmons, would not attend the dinner because of Raskob's leadership.

Byrnes, Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, Representative Garner, of Texas, House minority leader, and other speakers joined in attacking the Republican farm relief bill, and the tariff, Robinson saying that the Senate was the only forum in the United States where gag rule could not be applied.

Shouse, charged by Raskob with the ambitious plan, asserted that the headquarters here over which he will have charge will studiously avoid having anything to do with candidacies or party policies, save that in regard to the latter, he will, of course, feel free to offer suggestions to the Democrats on Capitol Hill.

He urged the Democrats not to split over possible candidacies or policies, but first to get together and build up the party.

Will Not Decide Policies.

"May I make it very plain to you that I have no exaggerated notion of my province and my responsibilities," he declared. "It is not for me to determine party policies. The chosen congressional spokesmen of constituencies of the various State and the various subdivisions of States must do that as issues arise."

After explaining the plan to build up an organization in every precinct, county and State, Shouse said he would be "utterly lacking in appreciation if I did not pause here to pay tribute to the man who conceived it.

"During the campaign last fall and in frequent contacts since, I have had the opportunity to get to know John Raskob well. From that knowledge I can state positively that without ulterior motive, without selfish design or personal ambition, without reference to the candidacy of any man for any office, but solely with a desire to be of service to his country through the instrumentality of the Democratic party, he has put into effect the idea of a permanent, working, constructive organization. There is no office that he would accept. There is nothing that he asks of life that he has not attained. His whole thought and his whole being are dedicated in a most definite way to the service of his fellow man, and the only reward that he would have is the

SWEDES TO CONTINUE FLIGHT TO NEW YORK

Forced Landing Off Coast of Iceland Fails to Stop Atlantic Hop.

WEATHER IS IMPROVING

Reykjavik, Iceland, June 10 (A.P.).—Capt. Albin Ahrenberg tonight expressed his intention of continuing his flight to New York immediately after a banquet tendered him and his two companions here. The reports of unfavorable weather over Greenland this morning had been supplemented by others showing improvement in conditions.

At the hour when Capt. Albin Ahrenberg had estimated that he would be nearing the Island of Anticosti, Quebec, his powerless seaplane reached Vestmann Island, off the south coast of Iceland, in tow of one of the several government vessels that had sped to his relief.

After being refueled at the island the plane was flown here and arrived at 7:48 p. m., local time; 3:48 Eastern standard time.

During the eighteen hours of delay resulting from the mishap weather conditions had changed and late reports from Greenland indicated that snowstorms and thick fog would be encountered if the three aviators attempted to push on.

The Junkers monoplane Sverige (Sweden) was manned by Lieut. Axel Floden and Mechanic Hans Ljunglund, besides Capt. Ahrenberg, when it left Stockholm early yesterday morning. A brief halt was made at Bergen, Norway, before heading out over the sea. About the time the Faroe Islands were reached strong head winds were encountered that diminished the speed and strained the airplane.

The radio of the Sverige worked perfectly and those waiting here were immediately informed when it was found necessary to make a forced landing at Skaptaros, 150 miles away on the southeast coast. Government assistance was immediately dispatched.

The aviators were guests of the sheriff during their short visit at Vestmann Island. The Swedish consul general and the chairman of the Icelandic Aero Co. have arranged for a banquet for them here which will be attended by representatives of the government, magistrates and the press.

American Woman Held For Vandalism in Spain

Madrid, June 10 (A.P.).—An American woman, Lucy Bonilla, was detained by the police tonight on charges of complicity in damaging a statue of the king at Madrid University.

On April 16 it became known that William Wright, an American citizen employed at Granda, had been arrested several days before with two sisters whose names were given as Bonilla and who were said to reside in the United States. The women were said to have publicly criticized the present Spanish government. At the same time it was announced that all three would be released.

DISTRICT NEEDS ARE $50,000,000 COUNCIL AVERS

Huge Sum for Operations Urged in Report to Commission.

AIRPORT PROPOSAL IS ARGUED WARMLY

Project to Be Opposed if Taxpayers Must Bear Entire Cost.

MORE FEDERAL HELP ASKED OF CONGRESS

Three Million for Municipal Center in 1930 and More in 1931 Approved.

Urgent needs of the District call for an expenditure of $50,641,855, the citizens advisory council declared at a meeting last night at which it approved a program for 1931 to be submitted today to the District Commissioners by Dr. George C. Havenner, its president.

The program included expenditure of $3,000,000 for the municipal center in 1930 and $4,000,000 in the 1931 fiscal year, but made no provision for an appropriation for a municipal airport, and disapproved William H. Harland's plan for spending $150,000 for extension of the traffic light system, proposing that a traffic survey be made first by the police department.

Development of an airport for the National Capital was approved by the council, but with the provision that, speaking as the representatives of the taxpayers of the District, the council did not want an airport if the District taxpayers would have to pay the whole cost of its development and maintenance.

Discussion of an airport provoked the only prolonged discussion of a serene meeting and the council instructed Charles I. Stengle, chairman of its legislative committee, and Dr. George H. Richardson, council member from the civic association, to inform members of Congress today that the taxpayers of the city felt the proposed $500,000 appropriation by the Federal Government was entirely inadequate.

Stengle precipitated the discussion, declaring that the cost of the development and maintenance of the airport should be borne equally by the District and Federal Governments.

"I do not want to stop or impede the progress of the city and I am not opposed to an airport," Stengle declared. "But the appropriation of $500,000 as the total Federal share of the cost of an airport is not within decency. It is not fair to the taxpayer to saddle on him the burden of this project which is of more National than local interest.

"It has been variously estimated that the airport will cost from $4,000,000 to $6,000,000 and we ought to protest against the proposed $500,000 Federal appropriation as unjust, unequal and unfair. I'm not opposed to an airport but I am opposed to our tax rate going as high as the airplanes and we have got to make a fight for the poorly paid Government employe who is struggling to buy his home and pay his present high taxes."

John T. O'Rourke, a newspaper man, who was present at the meeting, was asked by Dr. George C. Havenner, per cent of the cost of maintenance. president of the council, to give figures on the costs of airports in other cities. It was developed that Buffalo's airport cost that city in the neighborhood of $400,000 a year for upkeep and maintenance and that the revenue received from the field was approximately 10

Dr. Havenner declared that he was more interested in the location of the proposed airport than its cost, and protested against "Federal officials wishing

Autobiography of Al Smith Sold and Titled, 'Up To Now'

Story in Book Form Will Net Him More Than $1 a Word.

New York, June 10 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Alfred E. Smith signed a contract for the publication of his autobiography in book form today, and simultaneously settled one of his most perplexing problems with the title "Up to Now."

Mr. Smith seemed more delighted with the implications of the title than with the fact that his contract, with the Viking Press, will increase the value of his opus to more than $1 a word, possibly enough more to exceed his salary during four terms as Governor of New York.

The book will contain the articles to be published in the Saturday Evening Post, in six or eight installments, plus his own story of the late presidential campaign. His contract with the Sat-

DRY AID WHO KILLED AUTOIST ARRAIGNED

Jailed Under $1,500 Bond as Hearing Is Continued; No Warning Given, Claim.

SCHAFER ASSAILS ATTACK

International Falls, Minn., June 10 (A.P.).—Emmet J. White, 24-year-old patrolman, was arraigned on a charge of second degree manslaughter late today in connection with the slaying of Henry Virkkula, killed near here Sunday night as a border patrolman sought to intercept liquor runners.

The arraignment followed the finding of a coroner's jury that White was responsible for the killing. White's request for a continuance of the case for one week was granted by Judge John H. Brown, and he was remanded to the Koochiching County Jail here on his failure to furnish $1,500 bond.

Testimony that no warning was heard swept his car, was given at the inquest into the death of Virkkula.

Mrs. Virkkula, who was riding with her husband and two children, testified she heard no command to halt. One of the patrolmen opened fire directly the machine was driven slowly past him, she said.

Virkkula, a confectioner of Big Falls, was en route home with his wife and two children when he was slain, a slug striking him in the back of the neck. Mrs. Virkkula and her two children, in the back seat of the sedan, were not injured.

As her husband toppled into her lap, Mrs. Virkkula testified, the car slowly rolled into the ditch. Patrolman White appeared at the side of the car, she said, and asked if they had a gun.

"Lady," she testified, he said, "I am sorry I did this, but I only did my duty. Don't cry, lady; I have a wife and children and it makes me feel bad."

White, it was established, is not married. He entered the border patrol service last May and was with E. A. Servine, a patrolman of five years service, when the shooting occurred Servine has been quoted as having said he saw no necessity of shooting.

Mrs. Virkkula said the shooting began just after their car had passed a sign at the side of the road. She said she saw one man, but he did not command to halt. Asked how far the car traveled after passing the road sign, Mrs. Virkkula said: "I have testified that it went only the length of the car, so the hind wheels were opposite the sign when they started shooting."

Servine testfied that officers had instructions from N. A. Linderberg, assistant customs collector at Duluth, to shoot if cars did not stop at display of the customary sign and to shoot to kill should any resistance be made.

Walter Nelson, local chief customs inspector, testified he examined Virkkula's car about two hours after the shooting and found no trace of contraband. He said it held several empty flasks, but was unable to say what they contained, as there was no oder.

Officers who examined Virkkula's car said they found 26 marks and holes, apparently caused by bullets. The rear window had been blown out, and the windshield shattered. Several of the holes in the body of the car they said, were only a few inches above the spot where the children were asleep in the back seat.

County and Federal officials continued their investigation tonight.

Shafer Assails Shooting.

The fatal shooting of Henry Virkula by border patrolmen assigned to liquor smuggling duty at International Falls, Minn., was described as "murder" by Representative John Schafer (Republican), of Wisconsin, in a speech in the House yesterday.

Schafer demanded that the two border patrolmen—E. J. White and E. V. Servine—be sent to the penitentiary.

"This case," he said, "is another indication that prohibition is creating a

Hoover and Notables Aid Dedication of Structure for Big Project.

Work Called Great Step by Executive in Third Talk of Tenure.

President Hoover, surrounded by a notable gathering of Cabinet officials, members of Congress, former governmental executives and others, laid the corner stone of the new Department of Commerce Building yesterday afternoon in an auspicious event that marked also its erection as the largest office structure in the world.

The President made reference to this significant fact and to its design as the largest single public building in Washington. He called attention further to the edifice as representing "the most important structure in the new program for better accommodation of our Government and the beautification of our National Capital."

This occasion, following closely after the recent laying of the corner stone of the new Internal Revenue Building by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon as the first unit in the elaborate triangle project of the Federal Government, signalized the third public address of the Chief Executive here since his inauguration.

The program, presented at the northwest corner of the immense excavation site at Fifteenth and E streets northwest in a specially constructed stand, gaily decorated, went on the air over an extensive radio hook-up through station WRC and the National Broadcasting Co. The exercises, staged by the Department of Commerce with Secretary R. P. Lamont as master of ceremonies, attracted a sizable crowd that gave the President a rousing ovation.

Aside from introductory remarks by Secretary Lamont, other speakers included Senator Reed Smoot, of Utah, chairman of the Public Buildings Commission; Representative Richard N. Elliott, chairman of the public buildings and grounds committee of the House of Representatives, and George B. Cortelyou, Secretary of Commerce and Labor at the creation of the joint department.

The assembly also included Mrs. Hoover, Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams, Postmaster General Walter F. Brown, former Secretary of Commerce William C. Redfield, former Postmaster General Frank H. Hitchcock and both the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Episcopal bishop of Washington, and the Right Rev. John M. McNamara, Catholic auxiliary bishop of Baltimore, who pronounced invocation and benediction.

A unique feature of the ceremonies was the use by President Hoover of the trowel and gavel employed by President Washington in laying the corner stone of the United States Capitol in 1793. The implements were loaned respectively by Alexandria-Washington Lodge No. 22 and Potomac Lodge No. 5, Free and Accepted Masons.

"On this occasion which so peculiarly marks the progress of this great national institution," declared President Hoover, "it is a particular pleasure to welcome those men who, as former Secretaries of Commerce, have contributed to its upbuilding. And I may perhaps be pardoned for an especial pride on this occasion, having served for seven years in the department, and having had some part in the design and initiation of this building. Those who have presided over this department truly appreciate the significance and the inspiration of this occasion. It marks the emergence of the Department of Commerce into full maturity and service."

"We use today the trowel with which President Washington laid the corner stone of the Capitol 136 years ago. Its use can not but recall the growth of this city and our country which that period so uniquely represents. When President Washington laid that corner stone this particular spot was but a swamp traversed by little more than a cow path which led from the begin-

SENATE DEMOCRATS QUASH LONG RECESS

Robinson Group Unwilling to Agree to Fixed Date on Tariff Vote.

VACATION CUT TO MONTH

(By United Press.)

Senate Democrats threw plans for a long summer recess out of gear yesterday by refusing in a party conference to agree to fixing a date for a vote on the tariff bill, one necessary condition.

This development was regarded as virtually dooming a long congressional recess during the hot weather, though a short recess of a month or six weeks is likely after pending matters other than the tariff are disposed of, farm relief, national origins, census and reapportionment and modification of Senate secrecy rules.

Republican leaders were rushing matters in an effort to recess within a few days, by the end of the week if possible, and resume their work the early part of September. This was contingent upon a definite date in the fall for a vote on the tariff bill.

President Hoover was amenable to a recess if the tariff vote could be set, though he wanted this fixed early enough so there would be no danger of the special session running into the regular December session.

Republican leaders drew up their plans with the acquiescence of many Democrats, but when Democrat floor leader Robinson returned here a few days ago after a long absence, he immediately summoned a party conference which voted yesterday against fixing a definite date for a tariff bill vote.

Democrats fear amendments they plan to offer might not get full consideration if a definite date for a vote is fixed. Robinson said upon his return here that Democrats would agree to no recess unless they were guaranteed full consideration for tariff bill amendments.

The Senate has fixed today for a vote on the farm bill report. If the report is adopted, this legislation would soon be in the hands of the President and farm relief would be out of the way. However, if debenture supporters are successful in defeating it, so that the whole matter will be thrown back into conference again, there will be a long delay on this issue.

In addition, there is the controversial national origins issue, on which there is prospect of a filibuster, as well

Dr. Edmund Walsh Confers Daily With Mexican Bishops

Georgetown University Vice President and Archbishop Ruiz Deny That Washington Man Is Envoy of Vatican in Parley to Settle Church Row.

Mexico City, June 1 (A.P.).—Archbishop Leopoldo Ruiz and Bishop Pascual Diaz talked for half an hour today with the secretary of President Emilio Portes Gil, but otherwise made no public move toward opening negotiations for the settlement of the religious controversy. It was believed that their visit was to fix a time for an interview with the president.

The bishops continued to refuse to receive callers and to make any statement. Everything possible has been done to keep their place of residence secret. The Rev. Edmund Walsh, vice president of Georgetown University, who has been in Mexico City for five weeks, confers daily with the bishops.

United States Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow declined to make any statement on the religious situation today. He read an article in a local newspaper quoting a Catholic priest as saying President Hoover had taken an extra-official part in efforts to settle the controversy and had sent instructions to Mr. Morrow in that regard, but the ambassador only smiled and refused to confirm the report.

Mr. Morrow saw the President at Chapultepec Castle early this afternoon and later called at the foreign office.

Dr. Walsh denied reports that he had been appointed an envoy of the Vatican.

"As the existing differences lie entirely between the Mexican government and the Catholic Church in Mexico," he said. "The Holy See has very properly appointed a Mexican prelate of high standing (Archbishop Ruiz)

HOOVER WELCOMES MACDONALD'S PLAN TO MAKE TRIP HERE; LONDON FAVORS IT

Premier Discusses Possibility of Visit in Late Summer at First Meeting of New Cabinet, as Members Are Introduced by Radio.

DIPLOMATS HERE HAIL CONTACT AS ONE OF GREAT IMPORTANCE

Event of More Moment Than Is Realized at First Glance, They Say; Far-Reaching Anglo-American Rapprochement Declared Necessary for Plans Toward Continuance of Peace.

London, June 10 (U.P.).—Indications that Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald might visit the United States within the next few months to confer personally with President Hoover on questions of naval disarmament were stronger tonight after the first meeting of the new Labor cabinet.

MacDonald is understood to have discussed the possibility of such a trip with the members of his cabinet after introducing them over the radio, when they met at No. 10 Downing street, the prime minister's official residence.

The radio introductions were unprecedented in British political history. MacDonald plans to use the radio extensively to keep in touch with the British electorate and to strengthen his position.

The prime minister talked over the important question of relations with America at the cabinet meeting, it was said, and informed his colleagues of his desire to get in personal touch with President Hoover. Government authorities said unofficially that MacDonald might go to the United States in the late summer, after the short parliamentary session, which starts June 25.

Personal Letter Expected.

It is believed MacDonald will write a personal letter to Hoover when he considers the time ripe to open negotiations on the naval question, which is an obstacle to world disarmament. A personal letter is MacDonald's favorite method of opening such important international negotiations and it is recalled that he previously acted in similar manner in discussions with the premier of France.

It was said on high authority tonight that the question of a visit to the United States had not been decided except in principle. For this reason it was believed that the report of such a visit as published in the Labor newspaper, the Daily Herald, this morning, was intended to sound out opinion here and in the United States.

It is indicated that Premier Mackenzie King of Canada would participate in the conversations with President Hoover. Advices from Washington have intimated unofficially that the visit of the British prime minister would be welcomed and so far there has been no adverse reaction in England.

Historical Precedent Is Set.

The historical precedent established by MacDonald this morning in introducing his cabinet members over the radio and simultaneously having sound motion pictures taken of the ceremony occurred on the veranda of 10 Downing street.

"May I introduce to you the members of my cabinet who have been chosen for very hard work and because I be-

By ALBERT W. FOX.

President Hoover will welcome a visit from Ramsay MacDonald, the new British premier, and arrangements are already being made to pave the way for formal expression of America's invitation and America's hope that the prospective trip will be realized. Mr. Hoover had received unofficial advices concerning the proposed visit before the news was published here and in London yesterday morning, but nothing definite or official had reached the White House or the State Department.

In the absence of official information it was difficult for officials here to comment without possibly embarrassing the British premier. But the White House let it become known that President Hoover would be pleased to establish personal contacts with the new British leader.

At the State Department, Mr. Stimson was more cautious, declining to comment in any way.

Plan for Visit Pleases Borah.

Senator Borah, chairman of the foreign relations committee of the Senate, has known something of Ramsay MacDonald's plans, as the senator has been in regular correspondence with him for several years. Mr. Borah welcomes the prospective visit as an auspicious and significant sign of probable progress in cementing harmony between the United States and the British Empire.

The establishing of personal contact between President Hoover and Ramsay MacDonald will be an event of greater importance than is realized at first flush, according to diplomats here.

The present status of Anglo-American relations makes this coming meeting a probable medium for real understanding and cooperation between the British and American governments. At the present moment, this status or relationship is satisfactory, but there were rifts in the clouds only a few months ago, owing to the disagreement over naval reductions which led to the collapse of the tripartite Geneva conference. And, in the absence of proper understanding, there has been some fear that Great Britain and the United States might encounter difficulties in the very near future in their efforts to adjust their policies in the international field.

Each Seeks Naval Accord.

The advantage of personal contact is particularly manifest in considering the relations which are to exist between Ramsay MacDonald and President Hoover. Each has announced a readiness to lead in the movement for world peace and naval reductions. Each has made it clear that an Anglo-American rapprochement is important in developing constructive plans for the continuance of peace. Each has definite ideas as to how problems intimately affecting Anglo-American relationships should be worked out.

But even under such circumstances, there are possibilities of disagreement as to method and there already have been indications that the brand of Hoover leadership might clash head on with the MacDonald brand, even though both Mr. Hoover and the British premier were seeking to accomplish the same general purpose.

There has been a possibility that long range discussions between the British Foreign Office and the State Department might tend to accentuate the differences between the Hoover methods and the methods of Ramsay MacDonald. It is admitted to be far easier to harmonize conflicting views by means of personal contact than by long range diplomatic correspondence. This applies to the naval reductions problem, as well as to other problems.

Ramsay MacDonald is a leader of men and the type of statesman who initiates policies of his own, besides lending his assistance to plans evolved by others when he approves of them. In matters pertaining to naval warfare or naval defense, the British Premier has far more reason to be interested than President Hoover or any American. Naval defense or naval reduction is a matter of the most vital importance to the British people, as their very existence is wrapped up in that problem. Consequently, the British have always maintained that they could not afford under any circumstances to permit their destinies to be shaped by outside suggestion.

It is assumed, therefore, that Ramsay MacDonald will maintain a firm grip on leadership in any international movement having to do with reduction of fighting strength of navies.

The interest of the United States in this question is, of course, not comparable to that of the British. It would be beneficial to America and to the world, according to President Hoover, if a solution of the naval limitations problem could be reached, but the destinies of America will not be affected by anything that develops or fails to develop along that line.

Hoover in Position to Act.

But President Hoover has been forced into a position where he must assume leadership in matters pertaining to naval reduction and one where he can not shirk that duty. This situation arises from the Washington conference of 1921-22, under the terms of which the President must call a naval conference in 1931 to revise or reconsider the limitations agreed upon at that conference in Washington. Thus both President Hoover and Ramsay MacDonald are virtually pledged to assume leadership in the naval reduction movement and personal contact may provide a ready means for establishing teamwork and cooperation with respect to the coming program.

In matters affecting world peace, Ramsay MacDonald has always taken a very definite stand and has won recognition for his leadership in that field. His general views in support of the League of Nations and the internationalist conception of peace problems will not be reciprocated by President Hoover, but there is no reason why proper understanding of each viewpoint may not be beneficial.

The British premier's Russian policy, involving recognition of the Soviet regime, also will be at variance with the present American policy, but that difference of policy is not expected to be an obstacle. Various problems affecting Great Britain and the United States as well as Canada and the United States probably will be discussed in conference, if and when the British premier reaches Washington. According to London reports, Mackenzie King, the Canadian premier, will come to Washington and participate in some of the conferences.

VISIT OF MACDONALD SEEMS MORE LIKELY

have the nation fully believes they are perfectly competent to perform it?" said the prime minister as he stepped before the radio amplifier. The ceremony was as unexpected as MacDonald's broadcasting of his first official message Saturday.

The nineteen cabinet members were introduced, the first being "my old friend Philip Snowden," who is chancellor of the exchequer. Arthur Henderson, foreign secretary, followed, and one by one, the others were introduced.

"J. H. Thomas has broad shoulders and I can assure he is going to have a big burden put upon them," said MacDonald in presenting his minister of employment—the new office created to handle the unemployment situation.

The cabinet meeting lasted about 90 minutes. The members were cheered by a large crowd as they departed.

MAN, 60, ARRAIGNED FOR TORCH SLAYING

Wife Kisses Campbell as Trial Opens—Defendant Weak and Pale.

JURY QUICKLY SELECTED

Elizabeth, N. J., June 10 (A.P.).—Trial of Henry Colin Campbell, alias Close, 60-year-old bigamist, charged with the murder of one of his wives, opened today after the jury had been selected in less than 20 minutes. Close appeared weak and pale from the illness he suffered in jail.

After he had been brought into court his wife, Mrs. Rosa Lee McCready Campbell, kissed him on the cheek. Close tried in vain to conceal his emotions and his wife was requested to move to a spectator's seat.

Abe David, prosecutor, began his case with an outline of the shooting of Mrs. Mildred Mowry Campbell through the head while she rode beside Campbell in his automobile and of the drenching of her body with gasoline and the application of a torch.

Several letters, purported to have been written by Close to Mrs. Mowry, were read. They contained endearing terms and told of the home he was preparing for her. There was also frequent mention of money matters and of the difficulty Close was experience in finding work.

The Rev. William G. Harris, of Elkton, Md., identified Close as the man he married to Mrs. Mowry on August 28, 1928.

John H. Marsh, teller in the New Brunswick National Bank, identified Close as the man who deposited $1,000 in the bank. It is alleged Close received the money from Mrs. Mowry.

Justice Case admitted to evidence the confession which it alleged was made by Close after his arrest, in which he said he shot Mrs. Mowry for her money "because he could not afford to keep two establishments."

Objection to the confession by the counsel for the defense was overruled.

Air mail lines in the United States during May broke all previous records, carrying 587,471 pounds of mail over a scheduled daily mileage of 36,334 miles, for a daily average of 18,950 pounds.

The Post Office Department announced yesterday that the mail poundage for May surpassed even that carried last December, when the Christmas mails raised the total of 537,000 pounds. The May total surpassed the figure for April by 78,799 pounds.

Establishment of double daily service on the Chicago-San Francisco route and establishment of a new route between St. Louis and Omaha contributed to the increase, and added almost 5,000 miles to the daily flying schedule.

Close Friend of MacDonald Confers With Leaders Here

Cecil D. Burns Leaves Impression He Is Unofficial Emissary to Sound Out Opinion on Possible Visit of Prime Minister to President Hoover in August.

While official Washington was speculating yesterday on the report that J. Ramsay MacDonald, the British prime minister, might come here in August for a personal conference with President Hoover, by a striking coincidence one of the prime minister's closest personal friends and most trusted advisers, Cecil Delisle Burns, known to Englishmen as "the man who walks with MacDonald," was present in the capital conferring with leaders of the Senate and House.

Mr. Burns discussed with Senator Borah the MacDonald plan to call on President Hoover in August and left the impression that he was an unofficial emissary of the MacDonald government to sound out American opinion on the prospects of the meeting between the prime minister and President. It is understood that it was through Senator Borah that the White House was informed of the prospective visit.

Mr. Burns is one of the five members of the British Labor party's parliamentary advisory committee on international affairs. He is the Stevenson lecturer in citizenship at Glasgow University, is the author of numerous books on international relations, "1918-1928: A History of the Political and International Developments of the Past Decade," is the latest, and is classed among the small group of intellectuals who have shaped the ideals of the Labor party in its postwar period.

His appellation "the man who walks with MacDonald" is derived from the fact that while in London the prime minister and the professor are frequently seen on long walks deep in conversation, discussing the foreign problems of the empire, generally oblivious to the world about them.

That he should come to Washington just at the moment when the MacDonald government is launching its drive for a renewal of Anglo-American friendship, was the subject of not a little speculative comment in the small official group which knew of his being here. Technically, he is on his way back to London after delivering a lecture on international intercourse at Illinois University. As a matter of fact, it is known he is seizing the opportunity to establish first-hand contacts with leaders in American political life on behalf of Prime Minister MacDonald.

He has conferred with Senators Borah and LaFollette. Today he discussed Anglo-American relations with Representatives Britten and French, of the House naval affairs committee, and Senators Swanson and Walsh, of Montana, leaders on the Democratic side. It is highly improbable that he will call on President Hoover or Secretary of State Stimson.

Interviewed yesterday, Mr. Burns made it plain that he did not wish to be regarded as the "Colonel House" of the MacDonald regime or a "mystery man." He emphasized that he had not come to Washington on an official mission, or as the bearer of messages from the Labor government.

He made it equally apparent, however, that he would leave no stone unturned until he was in a position to present a comprehensive and accurate picture of the current trend of American political thought to his prime minister and friend.

House Committee To Act on Airport

Expected to Approve Bill Appropriating $500,000 for Capital Project.

The House appropriations committee will meet today and consider the Underhill resolution, providing $500,000 for Washington's proposed airport. Inasmuch as President Hoover has indorsed the measure, the committee is expected to approve it without hesitancy.

The House itself is expected to adopt the resolution tomorrow. It then will go to the Senate, which is expected to dispose of it quickly and send it to the White House for the President's signature.

In the meantime, the Bingham-Simmons resolution appropriating $3,000,000 for the municipal center project is awaiting action in the Senate. Already adopted by the House, it is expected to be approved by the Senate within the next 10 days.

Girl Tries Suicide, Report to Police

Lays Poison Drinking to Parental Attitude and Admirer's Apathy.

In a fit of despondency over parental authority and apathy on the part of an admirer, Miss Frances McNerva Polley, 18 years old, of 202 L street southeast, attempted to end her life yesterday afternoon by drinking a quantity of caustic poison, according to police. She was treated at Casualty Hospital and then sent to her home. She will recover.

The Casualty Hospital ambulance and Fire Rescue Squad No. 1 were summoned after the girl had been found in a semiconscious condition in her bedroom by her mother, Mrs. Ethel Polley. Before either arrived, George A. Walker, said to be the admirer, called at the house to see the girl and accompanied her in the ambulance to the hospital.

While being treated at the hospital, the girl told Policeman W. J. Payton, of the Fifth Precinct, that she drank the poison because her mother treated her "like a dog" and because her admirer had stopped calling on her, according to Payton's report filed at the precinct station.

Friend Is Accused In Pet Cat's Theft

$100 Persian Animal Found in Home of Owner's Acquaintance, Claim.

After being missing from her home thirteen days, Goldbug, a $100 Persian cat, was restored to her owners, Mr. and Mrs. Jason P. Risley, of 1023 Tenth street northeast, last night. Police found the cat at a rooming house at 720 Allison street northwest and the occupant of the room in which she is alleged to have been found was arrested and booked at the First Precinct on a charge of petty larceny. He is William Smith, 53 years old.

Smith and the Risleys are said to be old friends, and the cat disappeared the last time the former had dinner at the latters' home, thirteen days ago, according to the police. The cat was missed that night.

No suspicion, however, attached to Smith until an acquaintance told Risley that she had seen him standing on the corner waiting for a street car, with a bulky bundle under his coat and part of the bundle in the form of a cat tail swinging like a pendulum below the coat hem. Risley then swore out a warrant for Smith's arrest.

The plane, with Pilot John Stevenson, of Philadelphia, at the controls, had ascended scarcely 50 feet when it crashed suddenly to earth.

Mrs. Jones died a short time later at Mercer Hospital in Trenton, N. J., of a fractured skull and internal injuries. Stevenson was injured seriously on the head and may not recover.

HOOVER SUPPORTERS CLASH ON DEBENTURE

Borah and Allen Lock Horns in Senate on Eve of Farm Bill Vote.

G. O. P. LEADERS AROUSED

(Associated Press.)

Two of President Hoover's stanchest supporters in the campaign—Senators Borah, of Idaho, and Allen, of Kansas—clashed in the Senate yesterday over the export debenture farm relief plan in an exchange which added to the unce tainty surrounding the final vote to be taken at 4 p. m. today.

The Hoover campaigners disclosed they held widely divergent views. Borah demanded enactment of the debenture section as a redemption of the party campaign pledges, while Allen contended "this failure of the Congress to include the debenture in the farm relief bill is not a violation of the Republican platform."

The sharp debate left administration leaders more concerned than ever about the outlook for the farm bill, and it was predicted last night by both sides that the vote on the Democratic attempt to force a rejection of the conference report and a roll call vote in the House o. debenture section would be so close that Vice President Curtis might be called upon to break a tie.

Borah voted for the debenture plan last month after President Hoover had declared against it, but yesterday was the first time since the issue split the Republican ranks that he openly espoused it.

Fight Starts on Editorials.

He became embroiled with Allen over a reference to newspaper editorials, which the Idaho senator had held to disclose the editors were opposed to debentures mainly because of fear they would ruin the protective tariff structure.

Senator Allen contended the newspapers of the West, including some in Idaho, were "genuinely surprised" when the debenture plan was introduced.

"These papers were singularly unanimous," Allen declared, "to the effect that the Democrats, joined by a number of the nonconformists, have managed, by this coalition of themselves, to defeat the possibility of farm legislation in this special session, and that was the real merit of the debenture in the Democratic mind and somewhat the merit of the debenture in some of the so-called Republican minds."

Senator Borah retorted that Allen's remark "is a cowardly insinuation," and Senator Copeland (Democrat), New York, declared that he likewise "considered the statement a cowardly insinuation."

Says It Was G. O. P. Idea.

Senator Norbeck (Republican), South Dakota, declared it was "a mistake to say that the Democrats were joined by certain others.

"It was the Republicans who proposed the debenture plan, and not the Democrats," he said. "What is more, every Republican in the committee on agriculture and forestry voted for it.

"Why didn't you advocate putting the debenture provision in the platform," Allen queried. "You surely didn't want to fool the people, did you?"

"I didn't put it in the platform," Borah retorted with some heat, "but I did put in the language which would cover it under any possible interpretation."

He asserted that "some of us on the subcommittee drafting the agricultural plank had the debenture in mind, but we didn't put it in the platform."

Borah Recalls Hoover Promise.

"Let me say," he added, "that we pledged the party to place agriculture on an equality with industry and I contend that the debenture is essential to place the farmer on that equality, and if that is so I say that we will not be violating the Republican platform by adopting the debenture."

"I just wanted to get from the senator's honest mind," Allen said, "that this failure of the Congress to include the debenture in the farm relief bill is not a violation of the Republican platform."

"I do not agree," Borah replied.

"We sit here in the Senate today, Democrats and Republicans alike," he said, "pledged to put the American farmer upon an equality with industry, if it is possible to do so."

The Idaho senator recalled that President Hoover had said the working out of the agricultural problem was the greatest task of the next administration and that the President had pledged himself to find a solution. The situation "on the almost anniversary" of that declaration, Borah said, was that the farmer's condition was worse than when it was made.

Plan Is Farmer's Just Due.

"Those who advocate the debenture plan," he said, "are doing so to give the farmer a just part of the protective system and in no sense as a gift, gratuity or special favor to the farmer."

He declared the editorials which attacked those who voted for the debenture plan really showed a fear that to give the farmer a share of the protective tariff would shatter the system. He argued that the debenture was not untried and that it could not be considered a bounty any more than was the effect of the tariff levied for the benefit of industry.

Borah declared that Hamilton and Webster believed the tariff to be actually a bounty. He said the debenture was only a method of subtracting from revenue and that the position of the Republican party always had been that it was more necessary to build up industry than to collect revenue.

"We are asking no more than what you will do for dozens of industries when you pass the next tariff bill," he declared.

Former Lineman Loses Suit.

Frank P. Martin, former telephone lineman, lost a $25,000 damage suit against the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. yesterday in the District Supreme Court when Justice William Hitz directed the jury to give a verdict in favor of the company. Counsel for the company claimed that Martin, in his position with the company, assumed the risk and failed to make a required inspection.

Police Asked to Hunt Boy.

Police were asked yesterday by the father of a 16-year-old boy, Thomas Charles Fenton, 1233 Eighth street northwest, missing from his home since June 3, to help locate him. The day following his disappearance he wrote a letter from Baltimore in which he said he was looking for employment in that city.

Woman Held on Arson Charge.

Mary Mueller, colored, 35 years old, was arrested yesterday and booked at the Eighth Precinct on a charge of arson. She was arrested after Lou Thompson, colored, of the same address, reported to the police that the Mueller woman had poured kerosene on a chair and fired it.

Marguerite Cooley, 17, of 58 M street northwest, was reported to police yesterday to have been missing since last Wednesday. She is said to be about 5 feet 2 inches in height, weighing 105 pounds, with blonde bobbed hair and was wearing a black coat, pink dress and black shoes.

MOVE TO RESCIND OIL ORDER BALKED

M. L. Requa, Hoover's Friend, Warns Conference on Overdevelopment.

GOVERNORS ARE DIVIDED

Colorado Springs, Colo., June 10 (A.P.).—An initial attempt at the Governor's oil conservation conference here to obtain action on a resolution favoring rescinding of President Hoover's order barring further prospecting on public lands fell short tonight when Chairman Mark L. Requa ruled a resolution to that effect out of order.

Leaders of the oil industry largely responsible for America's "gasoline age" today were told by Requa, retired oil operator and personal friend of President Hoover, that he would urge coercive Government regulation if the industry did not refrain from overdevelopment.

Presiding over the conference the California oil man urged the governors and representatives of governors from oil producing States to join forces with the oil industry in promulgating an interstate compact which would eliminate overproduction and waste by controlling drilling.

"If and when the Government has made it possible for the industry to cooperate and conserve," he said, "and that cooperation and conservation is not forthcoming, then acting in behalf of national need, no one will be more insistent than myself in urging rigid Government coercive regulation."

Wyoming Governor Talks.

Early in the opening session of the conference Gov. Frank C. Emerson, of Wyoming, one of five speakers whose addresses were broadcast over a national radio hookup, said it had been "alarming to us to face an executive order that will suspend effectively the operation of the mineral leasing act (of 1920) as to new discoveries. It is the finding of new fields which we need in order to continue the industry upon a substantial basis."

Secretary Wilbur outlined the aims of the Government as uniformity of the conservation laws of major producing States by enactment of identical conservation legislation and the uniformity of enforcement by some body such as a joint commission.

E. B. Reeser, president of the American Petroleum Institute, told the conference that 2 per cent of the 320,000 oil wells in the United States were producing more than 50 per cent of the total production of the country.

Independent operators and royalty owners presented a demand for limitation of importations in proportion to any curtailment in this country which may result from the proposed compact.

Governor Flays Hoover Policy.

Gov. Emerson in a second speech reiterated his statement that Wyoming did not feel it could enter a conservation program as long as it did not know what it was conserving. He declared that the Hoover policy was seriously crippling the business of the State and urged that it be abrogated.

M. M. Crane, of Dallas, representing the Governor of Texas, declared he had no authority to commit the government of Texas to any agreement. He said he personally felt that the first move in the direction of a compact should come from the Federal Government.

Pat Malloy, of Tulsa, speaking for the Oklahoma delegation, said it could not commit his governor to any program, but that the State was more than willing to sit in any conference discussing the problems of the oil industry, as it was the outstanding business of the State. Malloy declared that so far as Oklahoma was concerned at present, there was no overproduction, as they were now drawing on storage for daily consumption and apparently were "running into higher prices."

Kansas Governor in Sympathy.

Gov. Clyde Reed of Kansas said he was in full sympathy with the purposes of the conference, and pledged the support of his State to the movement. Gov. Reed, however, said his personal opinion was that the Federal Government should set up a national oil board and amend the antitrust laws so that oil production could be controlled as railroad rates are now controlled by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Fred Stevenot, director of natural resources of California, expressed the opinion that when the time came his State "would do its duty toward national and international conservation of oil."

"The voice of the independent operator and royalty owner" was heard for the first time in the committee room, when Scott Heywood, delegate sent by Gov. Long to represent Louisiana, declared that his State would not sanction or enter into any compact which did not adequately protect the small operator.

Stimson Approves Reparations Text

Settlement Has Nothing Menacing to U. S., Secretary Finds.

The reparations settlement worked out by the allied, German, and American committee of experts represents a distinct forward step of benefit to the world at large and to Europe in particular and contains nothing that can fairly be construed as menacing or dangerous to the United States.

This statement was authorized yesterday by Secretary of State Stimson. In replying to questions, Mr. Stimson indicated that he had discovered no surprises in the text of the experts' report as published in this country. While the report is more or less complicated when it comes to analyzing the various figures it contains, and these are being carefully studied by Treasury experts, Mr. Stimson said he found nothing in the document that should occasion any alarm in the country.

It was again made clear by Secretary Stimson that the United States will have no part in the organization or operation of the bank of international settlements embodied in the experts' report.

Fishing Ban to All But Hoover Rapped

Maryland Angler Protests Closing of Stream on Richey Estate.

Where the President goes fishing—in Hunting Creek, the Catoctin Furnace Preserve recently purchased by Lawrence Richey, a secretary to Mr. Hoover—the ordinary fisherman may not, according to a letter of protest written to a Frederick, Md., newspaper by James E. Solt.

Solt pointed out he and other local anglers had long nurtured Hunting Creek, removing refuse and debris, stocking the stream with trout, and then complained that the creek had been posted by the Federal Government shortly after acquisition of the property by Richey.

As a result of Solt's protest, Swepson Earle, Maryland State conservation commissioner, announced in Baltimore yesterday that he will investigate. Earle said Richey had been cooperating with the State commission and the Federal Bureau of Fisheries to establish a trout nursery in the section under discussion. Commissioner Henry O'Malley said last night that the bureau had not posted Hunting Creek.

SLAIN PAIR'S BODIES ARE TO BE EXHUMED

Inquest to Be Held in Deaths of New Jersey Girl and Former Fiance.

JURIST CAUSES DECISION

Moorestown, N. J., June 10 (A.P.).—Officials of Burlington County announced today they had decided to exhume the bodies of Miss Ruth M. Wilson and her former fiance, Horace Roberts, jr., who were found dying from pistol wounds in the young woman's bedroom here about midnight June 1.

This development in the deaths of the locally prominent young couple was made known by Prosecutor George M. Hillman, Coroner Benjamin F. Farner and Chief of Detectives Ellis H. Parker, after they had conferred with Justice Joseph L. Bodine, of the State Supreme Court in Trenton.

Judge Bodine told the officials that an inquest into the deaths "is more imperative than ever," and directed that it be held as quickly as possible to avoid any complications arising in the investigation. Judge Bodine had suggested last Thursday than an inquest be held, but county investigators took no action, viewing the case as one of murder and suicide.

After the conference with Judge Bodine the county officials went to Mount Holly, county seat, to set the wheels in motion for the inquest which, it is said, would not be held before Wednesday.

Before conferring with Judge Bodine the three officials had indicated they were opposed to an inquest on the ground that it would be a waste of county funds. The jurist, however, said he believed an inquest advisable, in view of conflicting reports that had been circulated and that if one were not held the case would remain an unsolved mystery and a cause of recurring criticism.

citizenry of law-breakers and murderers. These murderers should be sent to the penitentiary so that a peaceful citizen can drive his family along a road without the danger of being murdered by prohibition agents."

Reading a news dispatch from The Washington Post, Schafer told the House how Virkula, a Big Falls, Minn., merchant, was shot and killed while driving his wife and two children home Sunday night.

No Evidence of Liquor.

County police, Schafer narrated, made an investigation and announced that there was no evidence of liquor in Virkula's machine. Two empty bottles were found, he said, but they had contained medicine.

Schafer quoted Virkula's wife as saying that her husband was shot before he had a chance to stop his automobile. Virkula, he said, traveled little more than 10 feet after the command to halt was given, when a shower of bullets struck the car.

House drys, who have been extremely cautious since they brought criticism down on their heads by applauding the killing of a young rumrunner here two months ago, remained silent after Schafer had finished his blast yesterday.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

THE thousands of little boys and girls who pour into Washington this time of the year to look upon the legislators, the statues of Statuary Hall, and generally to see the sights, should by all means be taken up to the new Democratic headquarters that Jouett Shouse has set up in the National Press Building. It would dissipate at once that impression that the Democrats are a lot of brewery workers and their leaders masters of the trade.

Under the circumstances one might well expect to hear ribaldry on nearing the place, with a lot of neglected children outside the swinging doors pleading with their fathers to be mindful of their responsibilities and come home. Jolly fat men should be moving busily about, white-aproned, wiping the suds from the tables. And there should issue from the doors, instead of the fathers, the hearty strains of that stein song in the Vagabond King, or was it the Student Prince?

But this is not the case, not by far. It is hard, indeed, to look upon it as a gathering place for men of political bent. It could more easily be mistaken for a woman's club.

No heavy cigar smoke thickens the air; the voices are those of the drawing room. Even the typewriters are noiseless as they beat their countless letters bidding the Democrats to be of good cheer.

* * * *

RED and gold tapestries drape the windows of the place, casting delicate shadows over growing ferns that are set here and there. There is nothing dazzling about these hangings. They are of the best of taste, suggesting that Mrs. Democracy instead of the old man is in charge. In the council chamber, so to speak, there is a large, oblong table, either of real walnut or of walnut hue, and so shiny that one readily sees one's countenance, as if looking into a mirror. Placed around it are what are called Martha Washington chairs, roomy, comfortable ones upholstered with a bright tan leather effect. They were made to order for the Democrats, it is said.

There are no cigar or cigarette ashes lying on the well-carpeted floor. Instead, one would refrain from smoking were it not for the ash trays that abound, not indecorously, but just placed around in suggestive fashion.

* * * *

ONE involuntarily draws up short and removes one's hat upon entering the door, drops the loud and profane speech that is usually associated with politics, and assumes an attitude in keeping with the serenity of the place. It is easy to see that a blustering politician, rushing through the door, cigar in mouth and perspiration on his face, might hastily withdraw, take himself away; indeed, to dash cold water on his brow, remove his cigar and straighten his tie.

It would take him some time to feel at ease in his surroundings. There is the hallmark of prosperity about them, but no flagrant display of wealth. There is an air of breeding about the place, an aristocracy of blood.

* * * *

SURELY this can not be the place about which the people hear so much; the place that causes the Democrats to row among themselves. If there have ever been any fights there and a turning over of chairs, then certainly the place has been thoroughly overhauled.

If the whiskey interests, as is often said, are the real occupants, hatching schemes and plots against the drys, then these interests are a most refined folk who have their books, their flowers, their culture and other things that should lift up the soul.

Quite frankly, it seems to us that the Democrats could make a killing by inviting Bishop Cannon to visit the place. One look and he would probably be moved to ejaculate, "Well, I'll be ——," so great would be his surprise.

It may be that the headquarters is what the women were to bring to politics. At least, it is a scream, as the flappers would say.

HOPE OF LONG CONGRESS RECESS THWARTED BY DEMOCRATIC BALK

as final action on the census-reapportionment bill and the proposed modification of the Senate secrecy rules.

Congress might, conceivably, dispose of these matters in two or three weeks, or it might take longer. Once these matters are out of the way, it will be necessary to wait for the tariff bill prepared by the Senate finance committee.

The committee will open its hearings Wednesday, the full committee considering the provision in the House bill giving the Secretary of the Treasury increased powers in valuation, before dividing into subcommittees for the consideration of various schedules. The hearings will take a month or more and two or three weeks will be necessary for drafing the bill. The measure probably will not be ready for the Senate before August 15, so that if Congress finishes its other business within two or three weeks it may take a short recess.

Robinson's Statement.

Robinson announced the decision of the Democratic conference in the following statement:

"The conference discussed at length the business of the Senate, including farm relief, national origins and tariff. The unanimous opinion of those present appears to be that a vote should be taken in the early future on the motion to agree to the conference report on the farm bill and the question relating to national origins.

Want All Issues Disposed Of.

"We will consent to any arrangement the majority desires, pending the hearings on the tariff bill, but no agreement will be entered into now to fix a date for a vote on the tariff bill. Our desire is to proceed in the Senate in such manner as will dispose of all questions brought forward during the extra session in an orderly way and we believe that this disposition should be made during the present session.

"There is no purpose to delay action on any of the subjects referred to, but we feel that they should be proceeded with and as promptly as practicable. So far as the chairman of the conference now knows, a vote may be reached on the farm bill conference report and before the end of the week on the national origins issue."

Congressional Deadlock Situation in a Nutshell

Here is the congressional deadlock situation in a nutshell:

Democratic Senate conference met and refused to agree to fixing date to vote on tariff.

Heflin refused unanimous consent to take up national origins, forecasting bitter fight on this issue.

Senate sponsors of debenture increase strength and insist House shall vote on this issue.

House increases tension between two bodies by voting to send census and reapportionment bill back to conference.

House leaders insist agreement to fix date for a vote on tariff is prerequisite to recess and Democratic position makes this impossible.

to bring to successful termination negotiations which resulted from the constructive and praiseworthy statements made by the president of the republic on May 8."

A message received here from Archbishop Ruiz last night said:

"The news item published in the press of this morning to the effect that an American priest has been appointed representative of the Vatican in negotiations between the Catholic Church and the Government of Mexico is without foundation in fact.

"I was appointed apostolic delegate to Mexico by the Holy See on the 18th day of May and following the instructions of the Holy See I consulted with the other Mexican bishops, my colleagues. As a result I was given full representation of the Catholic Church in Mexico, with authority to confer with President Portes Gil regarding the status of the church under the laws of Mexico.

"I am now in Mexico City for this purpose, having accepted an invitation extended to me through the Ambassador in Washington."

VENEZUELA REBELS ASSAULT GARRISON

Attack on Mainland City Held Repulsed; Strength of Insurgents Undetermined.

U. S. STEAMER IS SEIZED

Caracas, Venezuela, June 10 (U.P.).—A band of 100 Venezuelan revolutionaries, who seized arms and ammunition at the Island of Curacao Saturday night, attacked the garrison of Vela de Coro, Venezuela, today.

The rebels were driven off by the defending troops, authorities announced. The announcement said "a large number were killed."

The attack took place early this morning, according to the announcement, and was led by the rebel Capt. Rafael Simon Urbina, who was reported to have taken part in the raid on Fort Amsterdam at Willemstad, Curacao.

Several Venezuelan soldiers were killed in the attack. Some of the rebels were captured, the government said, but the rest escaped.

Some of those who escaped are students who were refugees because of a rebel attack on a garrison in April, 1928.

Rebels Called Fugitives.

The government asserted that the raiders who arrived on Venezuelan soil from Willemstad, which is about 50 miles away, on Curacao Island, were "all professional crooks, escaped from Venezuelan jails."

Government forces have gone in pursuit of the band.

Urbina, who has been considered a revolutionary agitator for some months, was in charge of the attackers, according to officials. The government had been attempting to extradite Urbina, but without success.

Willemstad, Island of Curacao, Dutch West Indies, June 10 (U.P.).—Advices that Dutch warships are en route here as the result of a daring raid on the local arsenal and an escape to sea by a band of Venezuelan revolutionists reassured the population of this little island tonight and restored peace and quiet.

U. S. Vessel Is Seized.

The raid on Fort Amsterdam Saturday night, in which two police officers were slain and the governor and military chief of the island kidnaped, was the most daring outlaw encounter since the pirate ships were driven from the Caribbean Sea.

The perpetrators of the bold stroke, a band of men estimated at between 200 and 500 and believed to be involved in a revolutionary movement in Venezuela, seized a large supply of arms and ammunition and forced the captain of the American steamship Maracaibo to transport them to the Venezuela coast, where they were landed near Coro.

They liberated prisoners in the jail here and took with them on the Maracaibo Gov. Fruytier and the military commander as hostages. Capt. A. T. Morris, of the Mraacaibo, was forced to put out to sea, but the officials and the vessel were released as soon as the men were landed on Venezuelan soil.

The Maracaibo returned here late Sunday night with all aboard safe.

Raid on Munitions Sudden.

The officials who had been forced to accompany the Maracaibo on its voyage to the Venezuelan coast, about 50 miles distant, could not add much to the story of the attack and seizure of munitions, other than that the men had been landed near Coro.

The revolutionaries had been employed at the oil refinery here. They did not damage the works, officials announced.

Their raid on Fort Amsterdam was sudden, but apparently had been carefully planned. The attack was so unexpected that the clash was quickly over. Two persons were killed and many wounded.

The officials were then seized and munitions were loaded on the commandeered Maracaibo. Virtually all of the available war material in Fort Amsterdam was taken.

Authorities here immediately got in touch with the Dutch government, advising them of the situaton and explaining that the Venezuelan government, which is now headed by President Perez and Gen. Gomez, as head of the army, was in no way responsible. Officials said there was no possibility of any dispute with Venezeula in connection with the raid.

Dutch warships en route here are the cruiser Hertog Henrik, three destroyers and the cruiser Kortenaer.

50 MILLION URGED FOR DISTRICT NEEDS

an underwater site off on us," referring to Gravelly Point.

The total budget for 1931 recommended by the council is approximately $2,500,000 more than the figure tentatively fixed by the District Commissioners as the limit they will submit to the Budget Bureau for approval, and is a little more than $2,000,000 above the limit set by Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor, for 1931 in his five-year fiscal program.

The council declared that the present tax rate of $1.70 was high and was not a lower tax than was imposed in comparable cities. The tax rate should not be increased, it declared. But the Federal appropriation of $9,000,000 a year was becoming a constantly smaller percentage of the total annual budget and should be increased as a matter of justice to permit necessary public works.

The council declared that it had limited its budget for 1931 because it expected supplemental estimates totalling another million or more next year. The total of the amounts specifically recommended in its program exceeds the estimater revenues for 1931 by $4,000,000 and this amount would be paid out of the surplus revenues of the District in the Treasury.

Recommendations Itemized.

Specific recommendations of the council included $300,000 for a farmer's market; $115,000 for a Northeast branch library; $35,000 for a site for a branch library in Georgetown; an initial appropriation of $250,000 for a new Connecticut avenue bridge over Klingle valley; $275,000 for elimination of the Michigan avenue grade crossing; $4,000,000 for the municipal center; $329,500 increase over 1930 appropriations for sewers; $40,000 for a new public convenience station in Anacostia; $50,000 increase for the refuse department; $350,000 for trash incinerators; $25,000 increase for street lighting; $300,000 initial appropriation for new ward and $175,000 for completing nurse's home at Gallinger Hospital; $780,000 for maintenance and improvement of public parks; $300,000 for two new bathing pools.

For the Police Department the council provided in its budget for 25 additional police privates, and $50,000 for a Fifteenth Precinct station house.

The Fire Department would receive several thousands of dollars increase, including $3,500 for a motor ambulance, $31,000 for two trucks, $22,000 for two pumping engines, $16,000 for two hose wagons and $89,000 for a site and building for a truck company near Twelfth street and Rhode Island avenue northeast.

Other Matters Considered.

The council declared that the District should receive some compensation for the large number of firemen assigned to duty in theaters.

The Board of Public Welfare also would receive an increased appropriation under the council budget, $20,000 more being allowed for the board and care of wards.

Frame buildings now in use at Gallinger Hospital were described as "six frame fire trap buildings" and the council declared that a new ward should be built and the frame wards, having about 190 beds, be razed. The total cost of the new ward was estimated at $700,000 with an initial appropriation in 1931 of $300,000.

Repair of M street in the southwest and southeast sections, as well as the repair of K and L streets was recommended, as was the construction of a new bridge across the Anacostia River.

LEADVILLE DRY LAW VIOLATORS SCORED

Others Are Warned They Will Get Limit as Sextet Is Sentenced.

POLICE CUSTOMS RAPPED

Denver, Colo., June 10 (A.P.).—Declaring that Leadville, Colo., tried to prove itself bigger than the United States Government in failing to abide by the prohibition laws, United States District Judge J. Foster Symes today sentenced to the penitentiary six residents of that city.

In passing sentence Judge Symes said:

"No man can snap his fingers at the United States with impunity, and if any other liquor law violator comes into this court from Leadville, he will get the limit."

William H. Corbitt, city councilman, was given a two-year term in the Leavenworth Penitentiary and fined $1,000.

John Yammich, night police captain, was given one year.

William Rittmeyer, former deputy United States marshal; Swan Lindholm, George Burkhardt and Joe Katinl, proprietors of drink establishments, dance halls or amusement places in the historic mining town, drew two year terms and $1,000 fines.

Judge Symes characterized practice of Leadville officials collecting money from dance hall girls, testified to at the trial, "as one of the lowest acts" that ever came to his attention.

It was brought out in the trial that Leadville had been a "wide open" town until Federal agents conducted raids last winter. Protection money paid by resort keepers went into the city treasury to pay for the paving of Harrison avenue, the main street.

DEAREST GENEVIEVE:

Vacation plans supersede everything else on the calendar. Where to go, when to go, with whom to go and what to buy to wear are the great moving questions absorbing the minds of every one.

The cool weather might deceive you into thinking that we will know nothing else between now and autumn, were it not for vivid memories of other Julys and other Augusts, which run pretty much true to a regular pattern.

Each summer sees more consistent activity in town, however, and since hundreds of people stay here except for their two weeks' holiday business goes on in the stores very much as usual. We who remain must have frocks and hats and shoes. We must be amused. We must dine and dance and continue to keep the automobile running. Therefore, it's rather silly to even suggest that anything stops in Washington in the summer time. Perhaps that was true years ago, but it isn't so now!

New Places To Dine

—are always of the greatest interest, especially if you belong to the great majority who "eat out." The Cavalier Cafe, 3500 14th street northwest, has been discovered, not only by people in the neighborhood, but by those who have learned that it is quite worth while to make the effort to go out there for the good food at moderate prices.

Breakfasts are thirty-five cents and up. Luncheon is fifty cents. Dinner is seventy-five cents and one dollar, also a la carte. It is a nice place to entertain, as the surroundings are pleasing, and the temperature cool.

Charming Frocks Should Be Photographed

—while they are new. Now while your summer clothes are at their best, do go down and have some pictures made at Underwood and Underwood's. Wear your prettiest chiffons and your widest picture hats and you may be sure the pictures will be the most artistic imaginable.

If you have any doubt about it, see the pictures which adorn the windows of this famous studio this week. They are portraits of beautiful young women, in newest summer apparel, and are posed so well, with such delightful effects. The exquisite finish of all portraits made in this famous studio adds greatly to their charm, needless to say.

If you like you may have the pictures made in your own garden, or in any outdoor spot which seems attractive to you, or for which you have a sentiment. An outdoor setting is very lovely for summer photographs, as you well know. Incidentally, the passport picture season is on full swing, and not a day passes but numbers of pictures are made in Underwood and Underwood's for this purpose. They guarantee that pictures will not frighten the purser.

Reduced Prices for Vacation Buying

—are lucky events for every one. Herron, 1735 Connecticut avenue, is announcing a drastic sale. Yesterday morning I went in to see what it actually amounted to, and must tell you in all sincerity that it is quite spectacular. There are adorable little crepe tennis frocks marked down to $8.50. One is a beautiful shade of yellow with green and yellow embroidery. For $16.50 there is an ensemble of a French blue crepe frock and a blue and white striped blazer. The frock has a flared skirt and a suntanned back.

A purple and capucine and white printed silk ensemble is $12.50. Other frocks are marked down to $18.50 and $25. They have been as high as $39.50.

Pasternak's Sale Of Spring Models

—has frocks and hats added to it each week, as the things are a week older. This will no doubt continue through the remainder of this month, but you shouldn't wait to take advantage of it.

Perfectly exquisite costumes may be purchased now, at such a saving, including garments to wear at once or to have in your wardrobe as utility ensembles.

Pasternak's, 1218 Conn. Ave., leads in smart apparel, as every one knows. To begin with, all models exhibited are of the most superior quality and fashioning, so an opportunity to buy at a reduction is too good to miss.

Lunching at The Willard Roof

—yesterday, it was great fun to see the familiar faces, for there is a certain coterie which lunches there regularly during the summer. There are new decorations, very cool and restful in pale green and soft gray, so that the entire effect is perfectly delightful.

The music at the Willard Roof is quite in keeping with the surroundings and adds immeasurably to a pleasant luncheon or dinner. Of course the cuisine is so famous as to need no comment whatever. There is dancing during dinner.

Even Though It's a Bit Cool

—the pleasure of dining on the Powhatan Roof appeals to many every evening. The view is just as marvelous one time as another, and the food is surely always delicious and the music peppy enough to make up for any necessity for brisk breezes.

The Powhatan Roof has always been the choice of discriminating folk who demand the best enjoyment. The fact that the popular John Slaughter Orchestra supplies the music and that there is no cover charge until 9 o'clock attracts every one, needless to say.

If you happen to be one who likes roof only in hot weather this is a nice place to remember about for the first warm evening.

Betty Hanna Expects To Close Later

—for the summer, probably about July 10. Between now and that time everything in the shop is to be sold regardless. New things are coming in every day, but the models remaining from an earlier showing are repriced for immediate clearance. These models will not remain in the shop long. In fact, if you go in the first thing this morning it will be none too soon. It is not often that Betty Hanna, 1613 Conn. avenue, has such a price as $19.50. A group of day and evening frocks have been priced at this figure and a peep at the price tickets reveals that some of them have been as high as $95. In the group for $25, original prices were as high as $110.

You Probably Know Before This

—that the Tally-ho Tavern is open again. It seemed Saturday, when it opened for the first time after being closed for some weeks, that the entire world was flocking into the pretty garden.

Devotees of the Tally-ho Tavern, 817 17th street, had waited so patiently for the opening that it was no wonder they all tried to secure a table at the same moment. This is a favorite place for men's luncheon conferences. There are two rooms adaptable to this purpose, and now with the garden going there is every opportunity for privacy in special luncehons, teas and dinners.

Affectionately,

Bab

POLICE SAVE STRIKE LEADERS FROM MOB

Gastonia Captors Outtalk Gang of 12 to Avert Lynching of Two.

FEELING IS HIGH IN AREA

Gastonia, N. C., June 10 (A.P.).—After a wild ride from Spartanburg, S. C., during which only the ability of two policemen and a city councilman to outtalk the leaders of a crowd of twelve men saved him from possible lynching, Fred Edwin Beal, Southern organizer for the National Textile Workers' Union, today was in a county jail "somewhere in North Carolina." With him was K. O. Byers, who was arrested with him at Spartanburg, on charges of complicity in the murder of Chief of Police C. F. Aderholt, of Gastonia.

Beal and Byers, arrested at the request of local police, were en route from Spartanburg Jail in charge of City Councilman Robert Craig and Patrolmen H. C. Jackson and Thomas Rankin, when the officers were stopped by twelve men in South Gastonia. The men, officers reported, demanded Beal and Byers. The officers and the city councilman refused to give up the prisoners, and began talking to the leaders of the crowd. Finally the officers were allowed to proceed with their prisoners.

Search for Tent Colonists.

While the funeral of Chief Aderholt was being held at the First Baptist Church late today deputy sheriffs and police continued their search for residents of the tent colony. During a chase late today after a man believed to be one of the strikers, Deputy Sheriff George Moore was slightly wounded by buckshot from a riot gun. The shooting, Moore said, was accidental. The name of the deputy who fired the shot was not learned.

Fearing possible efforts by mobs to get men under arrest and known to have been leaders of the strikers or guards about the tent colony, county and city officials today shuffled their prisoners about from jail to jail. Louis McLaughlin, identified as the man who fired the shot that struck Patrolman Charles Ferguson, and Charles W. Carter, of Mizpah, N. J., the camp guard who first accosted the officers when they entered the tent colony to investigate a fist fight, were removed from the Lincoln County Jail to another and stronger jail.

Approximately 5,000 persons attended the funeral of the slain police chief this afternoon but only about 1,000 of them could get into the church. The others stood outside in a light rain.

65 Persons Now Are Held.

A total of 65 persons were in various jails here and in other cities tonight, held in connection with the investigation of the shooting. All of those arrested were charged with assault with intent to kill when arrested. Police officials said that warrants against perhaps a score of the persons held would be changed to murder.

Just when the prisoners will be given hearings was not known tonight. City officials said they probably would be postponed until feeling had somewhat died down and they could be brought into court without danger.

Gov. O. Max Gardner, at Raleigh, who on Friday night instructed local officials to use every means to handle the situation without calling out troops, has been receiving periodic reports from local National Guard officers.

Loss of $100,000,000 Is Traced to Insects

Chicago, June 10 (A.P.).—The Nation may trip blithely along unaware of its plight, but the insecticide manufacturers today were disposed to view with alarm the prospect of the country "going bugs."

Leaders of the trade estimated the cost of an annual meal ticket for America's insects at $100,000,000. On the menu were clothing, rugs, upholstery, foodstuffs and other delicacies required by the right-living fly, moth, mosquito, cockroach and their relatives. An inkling of the rate at which the Nation's insect bugbear multiplied was given by John Powell, New York manufacturer. In 1924, he said, some 3,000,000 pounds of dalmatian daisy were imported for the manufacture of insecticides. Last year 13,000,000 pounds were imported.

Empringham Divorced; Not Antisaloon Chief

Reno, Nev., June 10 (A.P.).—James Empringham was granted a divorce here today from Ethel M. Empringham on grounds of desertion, custody of a minor son being awarded to Mrs. Empringham.

Similarity in names and dates of marriage as well as children gave rise to the report here that Empringham was none other than the Rev. James Empringham, former superintendent of the New York Antisaloon League. He denied this today after he had received his decree, and remarked, "They're all wet."

Four Killed, 25 Injured In Colombia Train Wreck

Bogota, Colombia, June 10 (A.P.).—Four persons were killed and 25 injured in the derailment of a train on the Linea Ferrea Curardot at Javier yesterday.

The accident is believed to have been caused by excessive speed of the train while passing a dangerous spot.

SMITH'S OWN STORY CALLED "UP TO NOW"

urday Evening Post is understood to be worth $50,000 to him.

The exact terms of his contract with the Viking Press were not revealed, but they are the reverse of the customary contract. Mr. Smith's royalty is to be rather large on the first thousands sold, and to decrease as the sales continue.

Mr. Smith, it was disclosed by his assistant in the preparation of the book, Mrs. Henry Moskowitz, has achieved a literary output which should make the speediest professional authors ashamed of themselves. In two hours last Saturday he dictated 7,500 words.

About two-thirds of the material for the Saturday Evening Post is to be delivered tomorrow. Its publication is to begin late in July and end in September. The book will appear about the middle of October.

It will have many illustrations.

"Any golf scores in it?" he was asked.

Mr. Smith winced.

"I don't think we ever mentioned it. I'm afraid to get on the subject."

George T. Bye, literary agent, revealed that among the rejected titles for the work were: "Let's Look at the Record," favored by Mr. Smith's campaign workers, and "The Name Is Smith," which Mr. Sye seemed to think was pretty good.

Harold K. Guinsburg, president of the Viking Press, participated in the conference with Mr. Smith and Mrs. Moscowitz, at which a solution was reached in "Up to Now."

GIRLS' CLASS HEARS BISHOP RHINELANDER

Religion Is Aid to Freedom, Says Prelate at Chevy Chase Exercises.

DIPLOMAS ARE AWARDED

"The world needs free, unself-deceived men and women, and religion helps us to attain freedom," declared Bishop Philip Mercer Rhinelander in an address at the commencement exercises of Chevy Chase School yesterday afternoon.

"Through Jesus Christ, who said, 'Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make ye free,' religion teaches us what we are here for, and gives us power to use our divine gifts, such as love and thought, to obtain freedom somewhat in the way that the school gives ability for self-expression through a mastery of technique," added the bishop.

The invocation and benediction were by the Rev. Henry T. Cooke. Three selections were played by the National String Quartet.

Students receiving diplomas in the first junior college class to be graduated from this school were: Jane Beryl Bailey, of Virginia; Martha Bryant Callaway, of Missouri, who had the highest scholastic standing for the year and was tennis champion of the school for the last two years; Mary Eliza Dale, Kentucky; Dorothy Virginia Dinkel, New York; Siri Mattison, Wisconsin; Marcia Virginia Kreul, Iowa; Florence Elizabeth Rockwell, Michigan; Virginia Rountree, Missouri; Frances Irwin Simons, Ohio.

Those graduating from the high school class were: Harriette Caroline Farrar, Pennsylvania; Helen Estelle Fenning, New York; Sarah Jane May, Missouri; Henrietta King Page, Michigan; Margaret Lucile Rockwell, Michigan, and May Kathryn Schlich.

LAMONT SILVERWARE IS FOUND ABANDONED

Articles Worth $10,000 Discovered in Car Shortly After Banker's Home Is Looted.

WRECK SMASHES AUTO

Brewster, N. Y., June 10 (A.P.).—Silverware valued at $10,000 was recovered by State police today in an abandoned automobile here a few hours after it was stolen from the Millbrook, N. Y., home of Thomas W. Lamont, partner in the J. P. Morgan banking house, it was learned tonight.

The automobile, a coupe, had been slightly damaged in a collision with another car on a bridge near Brewster. State police said they learned that two men who had occupied the coupe ran away after the collision.

When the automobile was towed to a Brewster garage State police opened the rear compartment and found approximately 302 pieces of silver, a set of burglar tools and a rope.

A short time later State police at Millbrook were notified by Mrs. Lamont that she was awakened early today by the sound of some one moving about the house. She said she feared to leave her room, but did look out of her window and saw two men, one of them carrying a large bag, running across the lawn to the State highway nearby.

Police said they found in the abandoned automobile ornate serving bowls, a rare tea set and a large number of pieces of flatware.

State troopers at White Plains said tonight that one of the men who abandoned the automobile had been partly identified.

Mr. Lamont is en route home from Paris, where he has been an alternate United States representative to the reparations conference.

Tomb of First Ming Ruler Bears Banner for Air Mail

Chinese Route Advertised to Operate Between Shanghai, Hankow and Nanking; Girls Try to Get Jobs as Student Pilots on Line.

Nanking, China, June 10 (A.P.).—On the crumbling tomb of Hung-Wu, founder of the Ming dynasty in this city in 1368 A. D., there hangs today a huge banner in red, yellow and black, bearing this inscription:

"Daily air mail and passenger service will start from here. Shanghai, Hankow and Nanking. Fare one way $35 American. By order, ministry of communications."

The place has been selected for the landing field of the Stinson Aircraft Corporation of Wayne, Mich., second American concern to get a contract with the Nationalist government for air transportation of mails and passengers between Shanghai on the east and Hankow on the west, over a stretch of 600 miles.

As if further to emphasize the contrast between the old and the new the government has been confronted with the unlooked-for applications of eleven young women who wished to be trained as pilots of the speedy six-passenger machines that are to be used on the new line. Two of these exponents of advanced feminism disguised themselves as men in order to have a better chance of realizing their ambitions.

The contract with the government provides that Americans are to man the machines and shops at the start of the service. Their places are later to be taken by Chinese and it is part of the obligation of the Americans to train the Chinese for this work.

The chief pilots at the inauguration of the service will be Jerome Machle, a flying instructor at Selfridge Field, near Detroit, in the World War, and W. R. Henderson, former flight officer with the Royal Flying Corps. Machle recently helped establish the first government air mail service in Mexico.

Battle Between Turks And Insurgents Reported

Beirut, Syria, June 10 (A.P.).—A traveler arriving from Kurdistan, in eastern Turkey, reported that pitched battles between Turks and insurgents in the shadow of Mount Ararat had caused heavy losses. The insurgents were described as advancing in two columns, one east of Lake Van and the other near Sassun. They were said to have invested the city of Van while the Turks were massing troops to relieve it.

Similar reports from Jerusalem last Friday were said by official circles in Constantinople to be absolutely unfounded. Turkey was then described as in a normal condition throughout its extent.

Arson Charge Seen In Insurance Plot

Georgia Solicitor Declares Indictment Probable in Powers Case.

Macon, Ga., June 10 (A.P.).—Solicitor Charles H. Garrett announced this afternoon that the Bibb County grand jury probably would be asked to indict Mrs. J. C. Powers, aged boarding house proprietress, central figure in the slaying of James W. Parks, youthful printer, and Claud P. Burnham, Jacksonville, Fla., linotype operator, on charges of arson in connection with the destruction of a residence here in 1925.

The solicitor general's announcement followed questioning of Burnham, who was brought here from Jacksonville yesterday. Burnham agreed to tell of his dealing with Mrs. Powers while a roomer at her house in 1925, when the fire occurred.

Earl Manchester, 19, under indictment for murder in connection with the death of Parks, also told some of Mrs. Powers' statements to him concerning Burnham. Mrs. Powers was indicted as accessory before the fact in the slaying of Parks.

Vancouver, British Columbia, June 10 (A.P.).—The Duke of Gloucester, who suffered a fractured collar bone when his mount fell during a polo game here, will not leave Vancouver today. The duke intended to resume his eastward journey today, but his physicians stated the date of departure will depend on the progress of the injury during the next few days.

Woman, Age 101, Dies After Smoking Last Cigar

Paducah, Ky., June 1 (A.P.).—Mrs. Mary Jane Watson, said to have been 101 years old, died last night at her home near here five minutes after she had sat up in bed to smoke a cigar.

The aged woman had been in ill health for several months and found solace during her illness in continuing her habit of smoking.

Mrs. Watson's birth date was given as April 8, 1828. She is survived by five children, nine grand children and fourteen great grand children.

Boy Bystander Killed, Man Jailed as Slayer

Hazard, Ky., June 10 (A.P.).—Joseph Covington, 30 years old, was held in jail here today without bond on a charge of murder, based on the killing late yesterday of 5-year-old Daniel Walker.

Police said that the bullet which went through the boy's head and killed him was fired by Covington at his wife. A quarrel while Covington was intoxicated was blamed.

League Adjourns To See Festivity

Council in Brief Session at Madrid Before Taking Recess.

Madrid, June 10 (A.P.).—A plenary session of the League of Nations Council was organized briefly this morning, and adjournment taken on Wednesday, so that the members might enjoy the program of festivities and formal functions arranged for them.

The afternoon was spent largely in sightseeing, and this evening the delegates were guests at a banquet at the ministry of state presided over by Premier Primo de Rivera. League employes and newspaper men were invited to the reception that followed.

Vittorio Scialoja, of Italy, took the chair at the opening, but immediately turned it over to Mineichiro Adachi, Japanese Ambassador to Paris, who will preside at this session. The work of the league since the last session of the council was briefly reported and the agenda read, which calls for consideration of revision of the World Court statutes and protection for minority peoples.

NEW CENSUS TAKING TO BEGIN NEXT APRIL

Senate and House Conferees Compromise on Reapportionment Bill.

ALL DIFFERENCES ENDED

(Associated Press.)

Census enumerators will be ringing doorbells throughout the country beginning next April under a compromise on the census-reapportionment bill reached yesterday by Senate and House conferees.

The Senate wanted the count to begin in November and the House in May. The first adjustment of differences found the senators' viewpoint prevailing in the conference committee, but the House voted 160 to 136 yesterday against the fall date. Consequently the bill was returned to conference.

An hour or so later the two groups reached the April agreement, which probably will be taken up today by the House. Virtually all of the points of controversy between the two branches now are settled, and leaders felt last night that there should be little difficulty in obtaining approval, first by the House and then by the Senate, so that the measure can be sent to President Hoover.

Opposition to the November date rested largely on contentions by representatives of agricultural sections that if the census were taken in the early winter, it would find many persons in the cities who normally reside on farms. Because of this, they argued, the representation of farming districts would be cut down by the House reapportionment, which will be based upon the population count.

This view was expressed by Representative Wood, of Indiana, chairman of the House appropriations committee.

FIND "FRIEND IN NEED"

Mother and Daughter Praise Vegetable Compound

Johnson City, N. Y.—"My daughter was only 20 years old, but for two years she worked in misery. She was all run-down, nervous, had aches and pains and no appetite. I was taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound with good results so she decided to try it. Before she had taken two bottles her appetite was better, she was more cheerful and was able to work. I cannot praise your medicine too highly. It is wonderful for mothers and for daughters. It's surely 'a friend in need.'"—Mrs. L. E. Hall, 223 Floral Avenue, Johnson City, N. Y.

RASKOB UPHELD AT DEMOCRATS' LOVE FEAST

knowledge of that service being effective.

Candidacy of No Concern.

"There is one thing with which the Washington headquarters will refuse absolutely to have any concern. That is the question of candidacies."

The mild-mannered chairman, who is the storm center of the party despite the fact that he is the greatest financial genius it has ever had, probably gave his critics further opportunity to attack him when he declared: "The Democratic party believes in those principles of freedom and liberty which the founders of our Government endeavored to guarantee to posterity when they framed and signed the Constitution of the United States."

The Democrats have always talked about liberty and freedom, always declared them to be the party's first principles, but Raskob has given them a new and to a large part of the party, an unwelcomed significance.

He declared that unless a decentralization of Government is brought about, a revolution may result.

State Rights Little Understood.

"In this dollar age, in which the present generations are living, so much importance has been attached to the matter of acquiring wealth and success industrially," he declared, "that our people seem to be losing, in part at least, the really fine spirit of patriotism enjoyed by our forefathers, and when we talk of State's rights, of which Jefferson was ever a strong supporter and defender, there are countless thousands of our citizens, both men and women under 30 years of age, who have little, if any understanding, of what we are talking about. In my opinion, the continuation of the tendency of the Republican party to centralize greater and greater powers in our Federal Government in Washington, instead of building each of our 48 States into strong sovereignties, is bound to result in a power so colossal as to be unwieldly and incapable of administration. The lack of respect for such a Government, and the tyranny under which our people will have to live in consequence thereof, may well rest in a revolution which will divide this country into two or three republics and our posterity will then suffer the ills which the countries of Europe have suffered through jealousies, lack of trust, standing armies, &c., for countless generations."

He declared that we "have reached the crossroads and in my opinion there has never been a time in the history of our country when the States and the Nation more needed the unselfish, intelligent thought and interest of its citizens than now.

"To awaken this interest and educate our people to the dangers of losing our freedom and liberty is the job of the Democratic party," he declared.

He told the diners that the party debt has been reduced to less than $500,000 and that he confidently expected a reduction to less than $350,000 during the current month. But $250,000 is to be added to this for the purpose of carrying on the reorganization work, he declared, and the raising of this amount is to be alloted to the States.

$4 Per Election District Needed.

It means, he said, that an average of only about $4 per election district will be needed to free the party entirely of debt and give it a fund of $250,000 with which to operate.

He did not say so, but the State raising plan will also eliminate the charge that it is Raskob's party. At least, he will not have bought it, but simply worked off the bulk of the last campaign deficit.

Shouse declared that President Hoover must rise or fall by his farm relief bill as it is his, but if the tariff is modified by the Senate then the Democrats must be given credit for it.

"If this tariff bill is properly modified, let the country remember to whom the credit is due," he said. "Let the country not overlook the fact that without any suggestion of change, although intolerable schedules had been widely discussed in the press of all sections, the President allowed the overwhelming majority of his party in the House of Representatives to do its part to write this infamous measure into law."

He gave a new name to the attitude of the Democrats on the tariff. The party, he said, stands for a "necessary" tariff.

Shouse declared he wanted to emphasize what he said about the new headquarters here having nothing to do with candidacies or policies.

"I know that Mr. Raskob feels exactly as do I, and I call upon you and upon Democrats everywhere not to embarrass the national headquarters in the constructive work which it will attempt to do by trying even remotely to relate it or its efforts to the plan for a nomination, no matter who may be the man concerned or how outstanding his qualifications."

Senator Tydings, of Maryland, attacked the broken ranks of the Senate Republicans. A large section of the party, he said, is attacking the President for not keeping his pledge to the farmers. Republicans in both houses are attacking the tariff, and Senator Reed, of Pensylvania, "stalwart Hoover supporter," is fighting national origins' repeal, advocated by the President. It is the height of disorganization, the Senator Tydings said that in addition to Borah and other Republican senators who had bolted the administration farm relief bill there was another "well-known senator who sought the nomination at Kansas City" who is expected to bolt in a few days.

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, District national committeeman, told the Democrats that they should not let Senator Borah get away with Woodrow Wilson's freedom of the seas issue.

Stimson's Pet Parrot Arrives in New York

New York, June 10 (A.P.).—Old Soak, Secretary of State Stimson's pet parrot, arrived here today from Manila on the liner President Wilson. The parrot, famed for his naughty vocabulary, greeted Treasury Department agents, who took charge of him with a barrage of language that could not be interpreted.

Mr. Stimson left the parrot behind when he gave up his post as Governor General of the Philippine Islands to join President Hoover's Cabinet. Later he sent for the bird when Old Soak became lonesome. The parrot will be taken to Washington.

SLAIN ACTRESS HAD $1,000, POLICE FIND

SUICIDE PACT IS DOUBTED

New York, June 10 (A.P.).—Two stars that had been some time sliding downward along the theatrical firmament had plunged into the darkness that knows no dawn today.

Margaret Lawrence and Louis Bennison were dead, with bullets through their hearts, and all that remained of two careers that once held such high promise was the routine business of officialdom, autopsies and inquests and investigations.

Miss Lawrence, who had spent more than half her 40 years on the stage, was under Equity suspension for "walking out" on a play in which she was being starred. Bennison had been replaced as leading man in a play that opened tonight because he failed to attend rehearsals.

Their last appearance on the boards had been together, in a vaudeville sketch in an uptown theater, and the sketch had proved unsuccessful.

Miss Lawrence had weathered the setbacks of recent months, at least financially, for police found almost $1,000 in her pent house apartment, but Bennison was known to be without cash, a few days ago having gone so far as to borrow a dollar from a Lambs' Club bellhop. For the first month the talented comedienne and the movie cowboy who rose to stardom on the stage had lived in the actress' apartment.

40 Gin Bottles Found in Room.

"If the sunset has a heart, look for us there," read a note pinned to the penthouse door.

A friend of Miss Lawrence discovered them, the actress in her bed clad in a night gown, Bennison slumped on the floor beside her, dressed except for his shoes and his toupe. On the coverlet lay the actor's pistol, a "six-shooter," such as he used in his cowboy films.

And about the room were stacked 40 gin bottles—empty. City toxicologists said that both Miss Lawrence and Bennison were intoxicated when they died.

The note at first led police to believe that Miss Lawrence had so written her valedictory to the world before carrying out a suicide agreement. But the actress' sister, who came from Germantown, Pa., said Miss Lawrence had not written the note, and Mrs. Gertrude Chalair, who found the bodies yesterday, said it had been pinned to the door for several weeks.

Murder and Suicide, Police Believe.

Police subsequently veered from the suicide pact theory to one of murder and suicide.

Miss Lawrence sprang to fame on Broadway in 1911 in "Overnight" and during the succeeding years played in "Tea for Three," "Wedding Bells," "Lawful Larceny," "The Endless Chain," "Secrets," "In His Arms," "Mixed Doubles," "The Behavior of Mrs. Crane" and "Possession."

In 1913 she was married to Orson D. Munn and they had two daughters, now 14 and 12 years old. In 1922 the Munns were divorced and five years later she was married to Wallace Edinger, with whom she appeared in "Wedding Bells." Last November she filed suit for divorce from him, but he died before the case was reached.

Bennison had a wife and daughter in California and a brother engaged at a movie studio there.

Van Lear Black Crashes; 5 Safe, Abandon Flight

Calcutta, India, June 10 (A.P.).—Van Lear Black's Far Eastern flight in his touring Fokker ended in a crash near here today, but the American publisher and four companions came out of the wreckage unhurt.

After flying from Allahabad, Mr. Black's ship was about to land at the Dumdum airdrome when it took a nose dive. The forepart was buried in the earth, which fortunately was soft because of recent heavy monsoon rains. The machine was smashed. The flight was bandoned and the damaged machine will be sent to the United States.

PRESIDENT LAYS CORNER STONE OF NEW COMMERCE BUILDING

nings of the Capitol to the beginnings of the White House.

"Even when, seven years later, the administrative bureaus of the Government were moved from New York and Philadelphia and set up in Washington, they consisted in entire personnel of officials and clerical force of less than 150 persons. Since that time the administrative functions of the Government have been expanded year by year until they now require twenty times as many officials for each million of people as were required then. While there may be complaints over the expansion in other directions, this department can not be a subject of them, for it is devoted solely to aid and foster the development of higher standards of living and comfort of our people.

"The beginnings of the idea to create a Department of Commerce are perhaps obscure. There was no provision in the Constitution for any Cabinet officer, department or bureau. A nation struggling for liberty and freedom naturally gave more thought to provision of fundamental freedom by formulation of law for its protection than to the administration of those laws, but necessarily administration quickly followed.

"In advising upon the divisions into which administrative work should be assigned, it is said that Alexander Hamilton proposed the creation of six departments — State, Treasury, War, Justice, Post Office and Trade—but out of economy the last named department was not created. It was not until 114 years later that the functions which he then described emerged as the Department of Commerce.

Hamilton Saw Need.

"As Secretary of the Treasury, however, Hamilton's vision well comprehended the necessities of Federal Government activity in support of commerce and industry. Of the bureaus which are now included in the Department of Commerce, those of Patents, Census, Lighthouses and Navigation were established by him in the Treasury.

"During the hundred years before the founding of the department, other bureaus were created and finally brought together into a homogeneous organization with full Cabinet representation under President Roosevelt, and with Mr. Cortelyou as its first Secretary. The 26 years since its foundation have shown an extraordinary expansion and change until the department has evolved into its present impressive size and helpfulness.

"And its ideals are clear: That by cooperation and not by compulsion it should seek to assist in maintaining and giving the impulse of progress to commerce and industry in a Nation whose economic life underlies advancement in every other field.

Representative Elliott, as author of the Elliott-Fernald public building act which authorized this present building program in the District of Columbia, calling for an expenditure of $50,000,000 and for other buildings in the Nation aggregating $115,000,000, characterized this construction program as "probably the most stupendous ever adopted by this or any other government."

Smoot Speaks Briefly.

Senator Smoot, in his brief address, asserted that "to Herbert Hoover the Department of Commerce owes an incalculable debt of gratitude, for his organizing genius; his masterly administrative skill; his creative imagination and amazing energy; his crystal-clear comprehension of the department's needs and possibilities, in relation to our national life."

Secretary Lamont made a sweeping survey of events that led to the final erection of this building and the progress of the Department of Commerce through the years. He called attention to the conduct of commerce on a vastly greater scale than in the past and that for its survival "business must be on an economically sound basis; it must proceed on knowledge of exact facts."

Former Secretary Cortelyou briefly recalled his service with the Department of Commerce and Labor and pointed out that the department "enjoys the rare distinction of having given to the country a President." He declared that "it was Mr. Hoover's record as Secretary of Commerce that confirmed the people in the belief they had long entertained in his fitness to assume the great responsibilities of the Presidency, a belief amply justified by the event."

The U. S. Marine Band rendered music at intervals during the ceremonies.

Football Stadium Plans Discussed

Piney Branch Citizens Told of Project to Make Over Empty Reservoir.

Making the empty Sixteenth Street Reservoir into a football stadium with a running track around the field and a swimming pool at one side, as planned by the District Park and Planning Commission, was discussed by President Henderson, of the Piney Branch Citizens Association, at the last regular meeting till October yesterday evening in the Hamline M. E. Church. It is further planned, he said, to make the land adjoining the reservoir a recreation center for the neighboring section of the city.

The preparations for cutting Arkansas avenue under the Sixteenth Street Bridge were also announced by Mr. Henderson, tracts of land which stood in the way of the improvement having at last been bought up by the District.

The membership then agreed that there should be more effective services for tuberculosis sufferers in Washington, there being at present no suitable place for hopeful cases of this disease.

Frenchman Waiting to Fly Ocean Weds New York Girl

Pilot of Yellow Bird Obtains Waiver of Five-Day Law as Hops of Yellow Bird and Green Flash Are Postponed to Thursday at Least.

Old Orchard, Me., June 10 (U.P.).—The flights of the American monoplane Green Flash and the French monoplane Yellow Bird to Europe were postponed tonight until Thursday at least because of unfavorable flying conditions over the proposed route.

The flyers were notified by Dr. James H. Kimball, of the New York Weather Bureau that it would be inadvisable to take-off until the latter part of this week.

With the two planes in readiness for the flights, the flyers spent a quiet day today waiting for the weather jinx to stop dogging their footsteps.

Jean Assolant, pilot of the Yellow Bird, was the center of attraction when he returned from Portland this afternoon after his marriage to Miss Pauline Parker.

Assolant said his bride would return to New York Tuesday and take a steamship for Paris, where the Yellow Bird will terminate its flight. She hopes to arrive there in time to greet the flyer upon his arrival at Le Bourget Field.

Portland, Me., June 10 (U.P.).—Jean Assolant, pilot of the French monoplane Yellow Bird, was married here today to Miss Pauline Parker, of New York.

The simple ceremony was performed by City Clerk A. Edwin Smith at the City Hall after the couple had obtained a waiver of the five-day law.

The wedding resulted from a rapid-fire romance which began when Miss Parker, an attractive blonde, came to Old Orchard on May 27 and spent four days at the Hotel Brunswick, headquarters of the transatlantic fliers.

After her return to New York, Assolant corresponded with her. She arrived here early this morning by train and they were married a few hours later.

Moscow-New York Hop Planned by Russians

Moscow, June 10 (A.P.).—A flight by Russian aviators from Moscow to New York by way of Alaska has been set for August 15.

The fliers are Pilots Shestakov and Bolotov. The trip is being undertaken by the Soviet airways commission. The proposed route covers about 12,500 miles.

Long Plunge Kills Princeton Student

Youth Walks to Infirmary With Fractured Skull After Fall.

Princeton, N. J., June 10 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—John Clarton Gittings, jr., 19-year-old Princeton sophomore, of Philadelphia, died early this morning from injuries received when he slipped and fell last night from a lofty scaffolding on an unfinished building here.

Young Gittings, accompanied by other undergraduates, started shortly after midnight last night to climb up the scaffolding on what is to be the new McCarter Theater, with the purpose of sliding down the spiral fire escape on the tower of the unfinished structure. As he neared his goal, his foot slipped, and he fell into the excavation beneath.

Gittings climbed out and walked to the university infirmary, where it was found that he had suffered a fractured skull and internal injuries. His father was notified and was with the boy when he died this morning.

Man Found Under Grandstand Dies.

Walter Coleman, colored, 43 years old, address unknown, was found in an unconscious condition under the grandstand seats at Griffith Stadium yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock. He was taken to Freedmen's Hospital and died there on the emergency table. A hospital staff physician pronounced him dead.

THE GOVERNMENT'S BUILDINGS.

The laying of the corner stone of the Department of Commerce Building by President Hoover is an auspicious beginning of the Government's building program. This is the most extensive program of building ever undertaken in the world. Three hundred and sixty-three million dollars are to be expended, of which $115,000,000 will be expended in the District of Columbia. The Department of Commerce Building will cover eight acres and be seven stories in height, and will cost $17,500,000. The annual expenditure in carrying forward this Federal building program will be about $35,000,000.

The chief mover in this great work is Richard N. Elliott, of Indiana, chairman of the House committee on public buildings and grounds. He began the work four years ago. He found that no public building bills had been enacted since 1913, and more than 900 bills were on the calendar providing for buildings in as many cities and towns. Mr. Elliott conceived the plan which was subsequently adopted, and with the support of President Coolidge and Secretary Mellon he prepared the bill which passed the House in the Sixty-eighth Congress. It was not acted upon by the Senate. Mr. Elliott persevered, again secured the passage of his bill through the House, and by the earnest efforts of the late Senator Fernald, chairman of the Senate committee on public buildings, it was passed by the Senate. The last Congress enacted supplementary legislation proposed by Mr Elliott, which completes the national program.

The Secretary of the Treasury is charged with responsibility for executing this great building program, with the Postmaster General sharing responsibility so far as postoffice buildings are concerned. Secretary Mellon has given special care and study to the development of the Government's building plans, and has contributed largely to the artistic merit of the plans as well as to the adaptation of buildings to their sites.

In his address yesterday Chairman Elliott alluded to the inspiring character of the buildings that will carry into the future the present-day conception of the grandeur and permanence of the United States:

> A nation is judged by the character and education of its people, its public buildings, its homes, its literature and art, as well as by its natural resources. When the great buildings authorized in this program are all completed they will add much to the beauty and stateliness of the National Capital and other cities, to the efficiency of our Government, and to the health and comfort of the Federal employes, and will increase the respect of our people for the Government and elevate our Nation in the eyes of the world. It is a well-known fact that in these days when we are spending millions of dollars in research work, excavating the ruins of ancient cities, one of the things our students are most vitally interested in is the kind and character of the buildings they had in those days. From these we judge the civilization and culture of ancient times.

The most satisfying feature of the present program is its solidity. The building now provided are designed to stand for ages. Provision is made for reasonable future demands, although, of course, it is realized that the future will make its own demands that can not now be foreseen. When new structures are needed hereafter the buildings now being constructed will be found worthy in taste and solidity to hold a permanent place in the National Capital, no matter how gloriously the future Capital may expand.

INTER-AMERICAN UNDERSTANDING.

The international conference of American states which met in Havana in January, 1928, passed a resolution urging exchange of professors and students between the countries of North and South America. It is in harmony with this resolution that Simon Guggenheim, former United States senator, has made available $1,000,000 to establish a system of exchange fellowships between the United States and Latin America.

The practice of sending scholars and research workers abroad to study culture and science as they are developed in other lands has gained considerable popularity in this country. The existing Guggenheim Foundation has made it possible for more than 200 artists, scholars and other creative workers to study abroad. Most of the existing fellowships provide for exchange of students with the Old World. Insufficient attention has been given to the cultures and the political systems that are developing in this hemisphere. The English-speaking countries of the north and the Spanish-speaking nations of the south have much in common. They can not fail to benefit from a greater diffusion of their cultures.

The Guggenheim plan is especially propitious in that it makes the new fellowships available to citizens of Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, Peru, Uruguay and Mexico, as well as the United States. Many of the scholars given this assistance may come into the United States and gain a new conception of this country and its policies. At any rate this stimulus to "commerce of things of the mind, of spiritual values," as the donor puts it, will tend to give each country a better knowledge of its neighbors. Mr. Guggenheim takes the position that "for better understanding among the citizens of the American republics nothing is needed but more knowledge—a knowledge of the other's culture that yields nothing in zeal for one's own." The gift helps to emphasize the desire of the United States to understand the Latin-American countries and, in turn, to be understood by them.

COCK ROBIN DEBENTURE.

Who killed Cock Robin? No one wants the honor; no one is willing to share the blame. But some one must answer to the farmer for this cowardly deed. The farmers will begin to inquire about it prior to the congressional election a year from this coming fall. Who is going to take the blame?

In this vein runs the debate in the Senate over the conference report on the debenture plan for subsidizing agriculture. Even the Senate is now convinced that its pet, Cock Robin Debenture, must die, but its sensitive political feelings shrink from the actual slaying. The Senate, yea, even the conferees who so valiantly defended the creature of their genius before the rude delegates of the House, are now reconciled to the killing, if only the House would do it. But the House does not even recognize that Cock Robin Debenture lives and quite indifferently declines the role of executioner.

It appears from the debate in the Senate that a portion of the membership in the so-called lower house is willing to do the deed. But the iron-fisted politicians who have a death grip on the representatives will not permit it. Senator Smith, stalwart defender of the debenture bird in the conference, informed his colleagues that he would be willing "to accede to the conference report, if the necessity arose, if the coordinate branch of the Congress would express itself." Senator Heflin contributed the thought that there are "some political agencies at work which are providing a 'city of refuge' for members of the House who must run for election next year." He pictured representatives on the platform commending themselves to their constituents and answering queries as to the debenture plan in the most convenient way. One refrain would be: "I never had a chance to vote on the debenture; I would have voted for it." Another would be: "I was prepared to vote against it."

This is truly a hard pill for the Senate to swallow. The insurgents and the Democratic majority paraded out this scheme of helping the farmer and caused all senators to commit themselves on it. Now that they have laid themselves liable to certain criticism from one side or the other, they must swallow their own concoction and suffer the consequences. It would have been a pretty scheme if the Senate could have nobly championed the cause of the farmer and then been saved from final enactment of debenture legislation by the House. But under present circumstances the Senate must play the role of both creator and slayer of the unfortunate bird. Senator Heflin referred to the favorable action of the House on the conference report as a "further slap in the face of the Senate," but it would be more appropriate to call the blow a boomerang.

SOUTHERN FARM RELIEF.

A different kind of farm relief is proposed in a bill that has been favorably reported to the Senate by the committee on irrigation and reclamation. The bill would authorize creation of one model community in each of ten Southern States for the purpose of teaching better methods of farming and improving conditions of rural life.

The report of the committee notes that in such States as Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North and South Carolina, Tennessee and Texas there has been a marked decadence in agriculture since the Civil War because of tenancy and the one-crop system. Special legislation, aside from the general farm relief program, is alleged to be necessary to rehabilitate those sections. The experiments are proposed especially for the benefit of tenant farmers on large plantations which were once cultivated by slaves. The Interior Department hopes to replace absentee ownership with ownership by the man who actually cultivates the land, and to substitute the one-crop system with a program of diversified farming.

The plan would be incomplete if it provided only for tenant-owned farms and improved methods. It is proposed that the department organize a rural community which will serve as a model to farmers throughout each State. Attention would be given to social, educational and economic problems from a community standpoint, with a view to making rural life more attractive. Tenancy has created a very unsatisfactory condition in large sections of the South, and an example in community building is much needed.

There is no suggestion of reclamation in this scheme. Only fertile lands under cultivation would be chosen for the experiments. It is proposed that the Government shall acquire land and sell it to approved settlers on long-term agreements. The Department of the Interior would provide plans for development of the model communities. It is anticipated that these settlements would furnish an example that would revolutionize rural life in the South. By showing the farmers how to help themselves, the plan strikes at the basis of the farm problem. It will no doubt have careful consideration by Congress.

PROHIBITION COURTS.

Senator Jones, of Washington, author of the famous five-and-ten law increasing the penalties for violation of the prohibition act, has offered to Congress another ingenious scheme for drying up the country. He has introduced a bill which would authorize the President to appoint two additional judges in each Federal judicial district, whenever the business of the courts should become sufficient to justify the increase. To this new system of "associate district judges" all cases involving enforcement of the Volstead and kindred acts, and other specified cases, would be referred.

When Senator Jones championed, at the last session of Congress, the more drastic fines and jail sentences for dry law violators, there was ample warning that juries would refuse to convict bootleggers rather than expose them to the more severe punishments. Those predictions have been fulfilled in numerous cases. It appears now that Senator Jones is attempting to set up a new set of prohibition courts.

It would be the duty of the Jones courts to "hear and determine, to the exclusion of other district judges in such districts," all proceedings arising under the prohibition act. Apparently to stave off the opprobrium that would be heaped upon a court system for the exclusive adjudication of prohibition cases, these tribunals would also be given jurisdiction in cases involving the narcotic drug laws, naturalization, internal revenue and custom laws, certain misdemeanors and civil cases involving less than $5,000. Since there are 129 Federal judicial districts in the United States, the President would have authority to appoint 258 new judges at salaries of $6,000 per year.

Some of the Federal courts are in need of additional judges to handle the increased business brought about by prohibition. But the notion of creating a special system of courts for the enforcement of prohibition is absurd. What is there about the prohibition act that makes it supreme above the other laws of the land? The Jones scheme would give rise to two different court systems dealing with prohibition. There would be no excuse for appointment of the "associate district judges" in all the districts. The chaos which such a plan opens up to view should be sufficient to make even the judiciary committee, to which the bill was referred, put on the brakes. But it must be remembered that Senator Norris, chairman of that committee, betrayed the drys by supporting Al Smith last year, and it is to be expected that he will try to wiggle back into their good graces by espousing the Jones scheme.

BRITISH LABOR'S BIG JOB

From the New York Herald Tribune.

The make-up of the MacDonald ministry suggests very strongly that the new government in Great Britain considers as its most important problem that of unemployment and industrial depression. The appointment of J. H. Thomas to the portfolio of Lord Privy Seal, with this problem in charge, is notice to the country and the world that in the estimation of the Prime Minister and his advisers it ranks ahead of foreign affairs. Mr. Thomas is also to be deputy leader of the House of Commons and chairman of a group within the ministry to be known as the committee of national reconstruction. Other members of this committee include the chancellor of the exchequer, the colonial secretary, the minister of health, the minister of labor, the president of the board of trade and the first commissioner of works.

There is no doubt that the British industrial situation, both from the social and the political point of view, deserves this concentration of heavy guns. But there is considerable doubt whether, under the circumstances, the country can expect a positive and effective program of relief.

In the first place, the lack of a clear parliamentary majority makes it necessary that the Labor government gain Liberal consent to any measure of which the Conservatives disapprove. This virtually rules out anything as socialistic as the nationalization of the coal industry. Liberal sentiment opposed this pet scheme of the Laborites in the Samuel report, issued in 1926, and Liberal leaders denounced it on the stump in the recent campaign.

Considerable Liberal support might be won for a program of "rationalization," not only in coal but in the other depressed industries, such as steel and cotton, but this would require for its success either the cooperation of the industrialists affected, who have shown little inclination to reform, or their coercion. How far the Liberals would agree to their coercion is a question. Moreover, rationalization would not prove any too popular with the rank and file of the Labor party, since it entails economies that begin with the displacement of labor.

The inclusion in the committee of national reconstruction of the chancellor of the exchequer and the first commissioner of works prompts the notion that an effort will be made to relieve unemployment by the promotion of public enterprises. This was the remedy proposed by Lloyd George, though on a scale which incurred the derision of both Conservatives and Laborites. Mr. Thomas, in a recent utterance on the difficulties of his new job, said he would not be influenced by "fantastic schemes," which is a term that was applied to the Welshman's panacea. It is evident that he has no intention of adopting it except in part, and as a palliative rather than a cure.

The stimulation of emigration is indicated by the presence in the committee of the colonial secretary. This has been tried with indifferent success by the Conservatives. Possibly Labor will have better luck in persuading the dole-supported, home-loving unemployed to seek their fortunes in the dominions, but the prospect is none too bright, especially as the dominions are less than eager for British discards.

It looks very much as though the present Labor government were doomed to disappointment in tackling this huge problem. It hasn't the power in the Commons to attempt a real solution. The most it can hope to achieve is a slight amelioration of today's distress. Every one will wish it godspeed on this mission.

He Still Needs Spanking if He Won't Play Unless He Can Bat.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

JOHN SMITH, good American, sits in the grand stand. He is unhappy He is irritable. The home team is losing. An umpire's decision maddens John and others of his kind, and in a moment the air is filled with flying bottles. The umpire falls.

What is the explanation? Is it sufficient to call John Smith a bad sport? That merely describes a symptom. It is a symptom of a disease so common that a critic might be justified in calling it Americanitis.

The small boy, selfish by nature, quarrels to win advantages and have his own way; and if ten small boys plan a make-shift game of ball, every one clamors for the right to bat first. But only the one unschooled in obedience and wholly spoiled by lack of restraint and discipline is hateful enough to take his ball and go home if denied first place. The others, trained to adjust themselves to the inevitable, make concessions in the interest of harmony. They know how to compromise. They surrender to majority opinion.

Adults, like children, are spoiled by freedom. They are undisciplined. Because they are free of restraint and still childishly selfish, they will not observe the few fundamental rules essential to the preservation of a democracy.

They pledge themselves to abide by the will of the majority, but they will not submit to authority. The majority, once in power, becomes a master to be obeyed, and thus its very existence maddens the spoiled ones and prompts them to rebel.

In lodge or church or club, they abide by the rules while the rules work to their advantage; but neither custom nor majority opinion can influence them when their will is opposed. They will rule or ruin; boss or quit.

They help elect representatives to make laws for the guidance of all; and while they agree with the majority, they condemn the few who have no respect for law. But if the majority is against them, and makes laws they do not approve, they feel no obligation to obey.

They clamor for police protection and denounce the inefficiency of the law's servants, but they feel resentful and abused when an officer obeys his instructions and arrests them for speeding.

Too much freedom has spoiled them. They lack the mental balance and the self-discipline that enables men to adjust themselves to the scheme of things.

They are a house divided against itself. They tear down their own building. They think the rules fair while they are winning and denounce the rules when they lose. They throw pop bottles at authority when a decision is against them.

Cheerful winners, Yellow losers. Free men too childish to abide by rules of their own making.

ENGLISH TRAGEDY.

The tragedy behind one of England's greatest estates was recently revealed when the "domain of Surrendon Dering," from the lovely mansion, the ancestral home of the Derings for 900 years, to the humblest cottage, went under the hammer at Ashford Kent. The story is told in the London Daily Mail, which says Sir Henry Edward Dering went to the beautiful manor house Surrenden Dering, in the village of Pluckley, a man of 21. He left it a broken man of 62—broken by the worry of trying to keep intact the home where he and his ancestors have lived for more than 900 years. His struggle has failed. He had been forced by the heavy burden of taxation to sell Surrenden Dering and the estate, which includes the perfect old-English village of Pluckley.

Sir Henry has looked his last on the old-world village, on his Tudor farmhouses nesting in the Weald of Kent, and on the broad, wooded home park, where 300 of the finest deer in the country graze peacefully. He has walked for the last time down the long gallery, where hang the portraits of his ancestors.

"The hard part was deciding to go," Sir Henry said, and added:

"Since I was 21, I have slaved to keep it as you see it, but now that I am 62, I feel I can not go on. The worry has been too much and I ask myself why I should not have a little peace in the few years that are left to me. I have taken a house at Hythe. I have never been an extravagant man. This property was bankrupt when I came to live here 40 years ago. I pulled it round and made headway until we had these crushing taxes."

Sir Henry's greatest regret was that the sale of his estate meant the dispersal of the ancestral pictures. These included portraits of every one of the ten baronets of the line, from the first Sir Edward Dering, who was M. P. for Kent, down to Sir Henry himself.

One of the cherished possessions which he will carry away with him is a soiled scrap of parchment inscribed in medieval Latin. It is 912 years old Its edges have frayed away. Its seal has been broken and lost, but it shows how Sired the Saxon became possessed of these Kentish fields. The first of the Derings, Dering Fitz Sired, was Sired's son.

BRIDGE-BUILDING ANTS.

In the Madeira Islands, not long ago, a visiting naturalist saw a swarm of ants coming through the window into his dining room. He tried to stop the invasion by spreading fly paper across the window sill. After a few of their number had been caught in the sticky stuff, their comrades ran off, but soon returned, carting sand and bits of wood. With these they built tracks across the fly paper and so reached the sugar bowl.

This is one of the many incidents that reveal the astonishingly human-like reasoning power of these insects. Their keeping of "cows" is another example of their cunning and resourcefulness.

It has long been known that many ants keep "herds" of other insects called aphids which excrete a sweet fluid; that they "milk" these "cows" by stroking their backs, and even build "stables" in which to house them. Recently it was discovered that the ants know how to protect their herds and how to catch them if they try to escape from their corrals, writes Michel Mok, in Popular Science Monthly.

The insect "stables" usually are in the form of oval or tunnel-shaped chambers made of bits of grass interwoven with silk. An observer recently watched ants, as they drove one of the "cows" up a stem toward its shed. They coaxed it on, urging it from behind with their antennae, just like human cattle drovers. If it tried to turn back, they pushed it; if it went off along a side stem, one of the ants ran out beyond it and drove it back to the right road.

One day the same observer found, on the branch of a tree, a "stable" in which the wind had torn a large hole. The "cattle" were escaping down the tree. Four ants went quickly after the runaways, got below them and cut them off. They probed them with their antennae, bit them and drove them back to the damaged shed. They got them in, guarded the opening and later in the day repaired the hole.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Farmer Sells Corn at 92 Cents a Bushel and Consumer Pays $402.50; Who Gets the Difference?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As a farmer, in a small way, I am more of less interested in legislation now before Congress for farm relief. We certainly ought to have better prices for what we raise. But I doubt if the proposed legislation will accomplish much. If, on the other hand, Congress, the President, or the Supreme Court, or even one of the many bureaus which I have run into during my visit to Washington, would, or could, devise some means for getting for the farmer some of the increment which attaches to his products on the road between the corn crib and the stomach of the consumer the problem would be readily solved.

This suggestion grows out of an experience which met me on my way to Washington. I went into the dining car for a light breakfast and ordered, as a starter, a dish of corn flakes. It was brought to me in an "original package" upon which was printed (in conformity with law) the weight of the contents. I found that the package contained exactly "⅞ of an ounce." The charge for that enormous meal was 35 cents. I did a little figuring on the back of the menu card and found that a bushel, allowing also 10 per cent for loss in the cooking process, represents 1,150 three-quarter ounce packages of "flakes" and, at 35 cents the "portion," that bushel of maize costs the consumer $402.50. Of course he gets an ounce of cream and a dab of sugar with his "flakes," but allowing half the price he pays for sugar and cream that corn still represents a price around $201.25 a bushel.

The "one twenty-five" is more than any farmer has received for his corn for a long time. Where does the other $200 go? Have we no statesmen who are capable of devising a method through which some of it may reach the producer? I ask you.

H. A. CRUSE.

Congressmen Themselves Are to Blame for the State of the Record; Public Tired of Propaganda.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: What is Congress trying to make of the Congressional Record? It was once an accurate report of the proceedings of Congress, but now it has become a catch-all, full of magazine articles, newspaper reports, speeches that are falsely reported to have been delivered on the floor of the Senate or the House, and what not. It appears that the recent movement for improvement of the Record has gone sadly awry.

Senator King recently referred to the Record as "a burying ground for editorials, articles, speeches and addresses from all parts of the country and relating to every conceivable subject." Senator Walsh, of Massachusetts, says the committee on printing agrees with this view.

Every one is agreed that senators and representatives are equal offenders. Some Western member must tickle the vanity of a constituent by printing an article about him or written by him; some member from the South must clutter up the pages with every clipping he can find on a fanatical subject in which he is personally interested; another from the East makes use of the Record to carry on his campaign for reelection by a display of his oratory.

Readers of the Record want an accurate account of the proceedings of Congress, not propaganda.

ALLEN HARTWELL.

Democratic Leaders Must Cooperate or Make Way for Others if Party Is to Survive.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial, "Democracy's Disunions," appearing in today's Post is as timely as it is true. There is only one error in your article, wherein Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, is referred to as a Democrat. His past actions in the November, 1928, election clearly show that he is no longer a Democrat, and it was no therefore, to be expected that he would attend the banquet to be given by the Democratic leaders in Washington on Monday evening. However, it is regrettable that some Democrats of the South have declined to attend this affair, thereby giving the impression of their approval to the action of those who bolted the ticket in November.

It is just such incidents as this which cause a great host of voters to cast their ballots against the Democrats in a national election. When the Democratic leaders can't agree among themselves, are continually creating discord within their own ranks, how can the public businessmen be expected to close their eyes, stop their ears and forget all this wrangling one day in every four years and vote for such a party? Unless this wrangling and discord among the so-called leaders of the Democratic party is quickly changed, either one of two things will and must happen, viz: Either the leadership of the party will be transferred to others, or a new party will spring up to take the place of the Democratic party. One thing is certain, the Democratic voters will not stand much longer for the tactics now being enacted by its so-called leaders.

Condemns Invasion of Col. Lindbergh's Privacy—"No Brains," Thinks Kansas City Scribe.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: To me the affrontery exhibited by the yokels who insist on invading the privacy of Lindbergh is offensive in the extreme. Is America becoming like a centipede that has use for many legs but only one head? If so, let the man on horseback teach the vulgar how to behave.

How far is it from admiration to hero worshiping? From the fox trot to the goose step? Are we indeed "all sail and no anchor?" If so, the commission appointed by President Hoover won't have to search very far to find the cause of our crime wave. The remedy is another matter, for it has never been found possible to supply a people with a new set of brakes.

Foreign Service Brings Visitors To Washington

Many Envoys Now Home on Leave of Absence From Posts.

By JEAN ELIOT.

THE United States Foreign Service does not seem to be involved in the "vacationless summer" thrust upon Washington by President Hoover's decision to remain in town. A round dozen of our envoys to South and Central American republics are in this country on leave, with a few from European countries and at least one—Mr. Hoffman Philip, United States Minister to Persia—from far off Asia. And, presumably, since it is the custom of ambassadors and ministers to hand in their resignations at the close of an administration, they are waiting with a rather personal interest to know what the President proposes to do in the matter of diplomatic appointments.

Mr. U. Grant-Smith, United States Minister to Uruguay, is in town, a guest for a few days of Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Laughlin at their house on Crescent place. Mr. Willis C. Cook, Minister to Venezuela, and Mrs. Cook, are staying at the Mayflower. And Mr. George T. Summerlin, Minister to Honduras, is at the famous little bachelor club at 1718 H street—all of whose original members have given up bachelorhood to join the ranks of the benedicts. Mr. Grant-Smith, whose home is in Washington, Pa., is one of our bachelor envoys.

Another Pennsylvanian, Mr. David E. Kaufman, Minister to Bolivia, is home on leave and has been much in and out of Washington. He is now on a brief trip with friends, but will return to the Mayflower next week.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoffman Philip have been here for several months, as Mr. Philip has been recuperating from a long illness. They are staying at Stoneleigh Court and will be in town a week or so longer before leaving to make a series of visits.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Butler Wright were here last week, fresh from Hungary, where Mr. Wright has been serving as minister, but have gone North to do some visiting. They promised, however, to return later in the summer. Mrs. Wright was a Washington girl, Miss Harriet Southerland, and she and her sister, Mary, now Mrs. Louis Bacon, of Boston, were famous belles here a dozen years ago. They are daughters of Rear Admiral and Mrs. William H. H. Southerland.

Our Minister to Nicaragua, Mr. Charles C. Eberhardt, is also home for a visit, but is not in Washington at the moment.

The consular branch of the service is also well represented among the visitors. Consul General Claude I. Dawson, now on duty at Rio de Janeiro, is on his way to his home in South Carolina, and presumably will come to Washington before returning to Brazil. Mrs. Carlton Bailey Hurst, wife of the United States Consul General at Budapest, is passing several days at the Martinique Hotel. Mr. Hurst has recently taken over his post in Hungary after being consul general at Berlin for two years, and Mrs. Hurst is making a visit home before joining him there. Moreover, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Dreyfuss are passing some time at the Mayflower. Mr. Dreyfuss, who has the rank of consul general, has recently returned after making an inspection tour in northern Europe.

Ambassador of Italy Returns to Capital.

The Italian Ambassador, Nobile Giacomo de Martino, returned yesterday from a trip to Detroit and New York.

Senator and Mrs. William H. King have returned from New York, where they passed several days.

Senator and Mrs. Charles Waterman will leave Washington at the end of next week to go to Hot Springs, Va., where they will pass the summer.

The United States Ambassador to Japan and Mrs. Charles MacVeagh have arrived in New York to attend the wedding of their son, Mr. Charlton MacVeagh, to Miss Adele Merrill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Godfrey Merrill, on Saturday at Bedford, N. Y.

In all the career of the National Theater Players—100 weeks of repertoire—there was never such an attempt as this, "The Girl of the Golden West," David Belasco's play, brought back by way of celebration. Quarter of a century has passed over its head since the great triumvirate. Blanche Bates, the late Frank Keenan and Robert Hilliard, made of it a lasting memory in the old Belasco. Edith King, as the girl, Robert Brister, the sheriff, and Roger Pryor, the road agent, rise to the occasion and do what the old Westerners would call "their damndest;" much to the satisfaction of all concerned.

By far the noblest experiment of the National Theater Players, "The Girl of the Golden West" is undoubtedly their highest achievement; in all ways. The atmosphere of the old California mining camp, on Cloudy Mountain, is captured with an artistry that would meet the approval of Belasco himself. The boys are all there, in the Polka Saloon, and "The Girl," played with robust spirit and romanticism by Edith King. At times the young lady becomes so truly a girl of the Western plains that "E" street fades completely out of the picture, and the little pineapple stand near the theater turns, during intermissions, into a hut on a mountainside. Certainly the palms go to Miss King for a splendid portrayal—in mining camp parlance, her "chef doo-ver."

It takes many men, of all sorts, to make a proper setting for this lone girl of the camp, and none of them stack higher than Robert Brister, in that villainous role of the sheriff nor higher than Roger Pryor, as the fugitive from justice, though a few more years on his head might not hamper him at all, at all, in the part. The boy is magnificent, a times, but always it is the girl who dominates this piece of theater, since the play was written with that end in view, and Miss King possesses those very traits that caused the part to be a specially carved one for Blanche Bates. Miss King wears her sombrero well, and her boots.

All the National Theater Players are out in force, with Edward Arnold reveling in a part to his liking—a big, bold, bad man with a heart of gold. Freddie Sherman bobs up as the bartender, serving drinks with a gusto that will win him welcome in those after-the-theater parties sometimes staged along the banks of the Potomac, in flats and sharps. Mrs. Hibbard is completely disguised as an Indian squaw—Ugh!—and Charles Hampden hides under a strawberry blond wig and a Sidney (Australia) accent. It takes all sorts of people to make a world, especially a world such as Belasco depicted in the mining camps of California in the old days of the gold rush. What amazes the onlooker at the National this week is where so many apt character actors come from, and upon such short notice, for the regular cast has been augmented so the stage is literally cluttered with persons.

This is the sort of stuff that made the stage in the years agone—the magical land of make-believe. Though in spots it seems rather crude today, by the light of the modern theater, it is just the sort of romantic material that belongs on the boards, that will keep the theater alive and pulsing so long as it lasts.

After first-night stage waits, holding the final curtain till almost 30 minutes later than normal closing time, "The Girl of the Golden West" should go now merrily on its way—and, if other audiences enjoy it as much as the first, the way might be prolonged for at least two weeks, certainly not an abnormal run for such a sterling vehicle.

Funeral Services for Col. Johnston.

Mrs. Johnston, the widow, and her son, Russell Johnston, are scheduled to arrive today. They will visit at the home of Mrs. Johnston's sister, Mrs. Ben Lear, 1910 K street northwest.

A PROPOSITION THAT SHOULD BE ACCEPTED

In order to prove to the world that Cancers in any form, regardless of the age of the person afflicted, can be cured, I will make the following proposition to the American Congress: I will allow each Congressman to have the county commissioners of each county in the district pick out a person afflicted with cancer and send them to Lima, Ohio, and I will treat them positively free. The longest time I will keep them here for treatment is six months and the shortest time one month, and 75% of all who come will not stay longer than the one month. I positively produce the desired results in 80% of all the internal and 95% of all the external cases I treat.

In regard to my honesty and reliability, will refer you to the First American Bank & Trust Co. of Lima, Ohio.

Renew Your

HEALTH

By Purification

If the reading of this article teaches you only this one lesson about your own body it may be worth more than millions of dollars to you; for of what use is money without health, or after you are dead?

The lesson is this:—"Keep your system pure and you will have health and strength to gain and enjoy happiness, success and length of years."

But you may ask:—

How Can I Keep My System Pure?

That is not a hard question to answer, for physiology plainly teaches you that your liver, which is larger than all of the other glands of the body combined, has the special work of purifying your blood and thereby your entire system and of keeping it pure and healthy.

How Does the Liver Purify?

Physicians tell us that the liver has several functions, one of which is to manufacture a greenish-yellow, bitter fluid called bile, which, between meals, is stored up in the gall-bladder, but after each meal is poured out into the intestines. The bile is purgative and antiseptic or prophylactic. In health it is your bile that makes your bowels act regularly and freely every day—it is Nature's purgative. It is your bile that keeps your bowels pure, clean and free from fermentation (gas) putrefaction and decay. Remember that germs do not thrive where there is fresh bile and there can therefore be no fermentation to cause gas, nor putrefaction to produce poisons or toxines. Also, as bile is Nature's purgative, there can be no constipation if the bile is flowing naturally and freely from the gall-bladder into the bowels after each meal.

But when the bile becomes stagnant your bowels stop acting regularly and the contents become a breeding bed for the germs of fermentation (gas) decay and disease. These poisons, (called toxines) are gradually absorbed into your blood and circulate all over your body, poisoning, irritating or inflaming your brain and nerves, your muscles and joints, your heart, lungs, skin, kidneys, and every vital organ of your body. Your doctor calls this "intestinal toxaemia," and tells you that your system is "toxic."

Functions of Gall-Bladder

In 24 hours your liver secretes about 25 to 30 ounces (5 to 6 teacupfuls) of bile, which flows through millions of minute canals, or ducts, uniting to make a large tube which empties into the gall-bladder, as creeks and rivulets unite to form a river that flows into a lake. Your gall-bladder is a hollow muscle that serves the double purpose of a reservoir and a pump. Its functions are similar to those of the urinary bladder. About three hours after eating, when the food is passing from the stomach into the intestine, your gall-bladder should begin its peristaltic contractions, thus pumping the bile into the small intestine where it is mixed with your food. (Bile is also a very important digestive fluid, aiding in the digestion and absorption of fats and oils. But that is too long a story to relate here.)

Nature's Danger Signals

When your car gets out of order you can tell it. It is the same way with your bile. Nature gives you warning—not by words, but by signals or symptoms. Your doctor recognizes these danger signals and you should also know them and instantly heed them. It may save you much pain, serious illness and perhaps big repair bills.

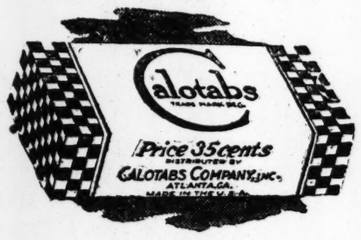
When the bile becomes stagnant in your gall-bladder and is dammed back into your liver instead of flowing freely into your bowels you, sooner or later, begin to feel some of the following symptoms:—Your breath may become unpleasant, your tongue coated, a bad taste in your mouth, your food (and tobacco) lose their natural flavor, your food does not agree with you; you may have heartburn, gas, or fluttering around the heart, dizziness or blind spell; you may be troubled with belching or frequent passages of gas from the bowels: the gas "balloons" your bowels and presses so hard on the kidneys that it gives you pain, soreness, stiffness in the small of your back over your kidneys, making you think you have kidney trouble; at night the gas in your bowels presses upon your bladder making you get up frequently, thus breaking into your sleep. In the morning you are tired instead of refreshed. Gradually your health is injured. Your complexion becomes sallow, muddy or yellow—your skin may be disfigured with liver spots or pimples; dark rings may appear under your eyes, you may become sleepless, restless and irritable or blue and melancholic. You may have frequent colds or dull headache; your bowels stop their free, full and natural action; you have constipation, gas, putrefaction and self-poisoning or "intestinal toxaemia," as the doctors call it. High blood pressure, with headache and swooning spells, may result from continued neglect.

How to Make the Bile Flow

But when the bile stops flowing freely, how can we start it up again? The answer is: Take Calotabs at bedtime and drink water freely the next day. This formula represents the best thought and experience of the best physicians. No other purgative will do. If you take oils, salts, cascara, or the many other simple laxative syrups, powders and candy laxatives you are merely wasting valuable time. They only make you feel better for a day or two. They do not remove the cause, for they do not promote the expulsion of the bile which is Nature's purgative and intestinal antiseptic. When you take Calotabs you know that you have taken a real doctor's medicine. It cleans you out thoroughly. Every inch of your 25-foot canal, including your stomach, small intestine and large intestine, is thoroughly cleared and washed clean and pure and your bile is flowing freely. Next morning your system feels purified and refreshed and you are feeling fine, with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Eat what you please and go about your work—there is no danger, for Calotabs are perfectly safe and create no habit, except the habit of healthy bowel actions.

What Are Calotabs—How Do They Act?

Calotabs are sugar coated tablets, containing the minimum effective dose of a thoroughly purified and refined calomel combined with assistants and correctives. The calomel facilitates the expulsion of the bile from the gall-bladder into the intestines and also serves as a mild intestinal antiseptic. Every physician knows that no other medicine can take its place; there is no such thing as a substitute for calomel. The assistants act like salts, washing the calomel out of the system and preventing its accumulation and any possibility of danger. The correctives settle the stomach and bowels, preventing nausea, sickening and griping effects. Calotabs (and water), therefore, give you the combined effects of calomel and salts in a perfectly safe and delightful form.



The medicine chest of every home should be supplied with Calotabs, one of the most important of all family medicines. It is needed in many cases of sickness, and, if used occasionally as needed, may assist Nature to correct conditions which, if neglected, may lead to serious illness.

Avoid disappointment by refusing imitations. Your druggist can supply you with genuine Calotabs or will order them for you. For your protection, Calotabs are marketed in original packages only, bearing the copyrighted trademark. Family package, containing full directions, only 35 cents.

GREATER NEW YORK BEAUTY WINS TITLE

Irene Ahlberg Designated as "Miss United States" in Galveston Show.

10 FOREIGNERS ENTERED

Galveston, Tex., June 10 (A.P.).—Miss Irene Ahlberg, "Miss Greater New York," was named "Miss United States" in the fourth international pageant of pulchritude here tonight.

Miss Ahlberg has chestnut brown hair and a smile that will not wear off. She has been popular with the pageant's spectators, and when Chairman W. A. Johnson announced the decision of the seven judges tonight there was enthusiastic applause.

New York captured the title in 1927 also. Miss Ahlberg will compete tomorrow with ten foreign beauties for the "Miss Universe" crown.

The nationally known figures who cast the critical eye of a judge on the embodiments of charm of the opposite sex were John Held, jr., who breathes the spirit of youth in cartooning; King Vidor, motion picture director; Dawson Dawson-Watson, whose specialty is portraiture; McClelland Barclay, who studied under Dawson-Watson; Nickolas Muray, art photographer and Olympic fencer; Max Herseberg, art director for Pictorial Review, and Rolla Taylor, San Antonio painter.

Blisters or coats of tan were the only hangovers from the revue yesterday at which several of the beauties became ill because of the intense heat. Miss Ohio, Dorothy Jean Davis, was affected by the heat today while she was standing in front of the cameras, but restoratives were applied and she was able to continue posing a few minutes later.

At least two judges think the entrants in the present contest have it all over the beauties of last year. They are John Held, jr., and Dawson Dawson-Watson, the only two who acted as judges both years. Held said that the field was 300 per cent better and Dawson-Watson was of the opinion that both the domestic and foreign charmers were more charming.

Court Frees Seaman Who Sails on Dry Ship

John Ricker, a sailor, pleaded guilty to a charge of intoxication yesterday when arraigned before Judge Gus A. Schuldt in Police Court and urged that he be released under a suspended sentence in order to sail with his ship in the afternoon. The sailor declared all his belongings were on the Steamer William Penn, which was to embark for a six-month cruise to the Orient.

"Well, you know it is risky letting you off since there are several of our ships that have gone wet," Judge Schuldt declared.

Ricker interrupted with the information that the William Penn was thoroughly dry. His plea was granted.

He was a graduate of Columbia University and for several years was playreader for William Harris, jr., and the Actors' Theater, Inc. He is survived also by his wife.

Capper Introduces Bill on Insurance

Measure Would Give District Model Code of Laws on Business.

A bill to give the District of Columbia a model code of insurance laws was introduced in the Senate yesterday by Senator Capper (Republican), of Kansas. It was referred to the Senate District committee.

The bill, which is based on a model insurance code drafted by the American Bar Association, will not be considered until the regular session of Congress beginning in December.

For years attempts have been made to revise the insurance laws of the District. Every Congress sees an insurance bill introduced, but none has ever progressed very far toward passage. Senator Blaine (Republican), of Wisconsin, who conducted hearings on a proposed insurance code during the last Congress, charged that a powerful lobby was trying to defeat the legislation.

THE two young women shown in our illustration embody a lesson in shades of differentiation between the two types of smart sports clothes. The well-informed observer could tell at a glance that the young woman standing on the running board of the motor had no intention of playing golf. The same observer would be certain that the other girl was not holding the clubs by accident. Just glance at their feet. The brown-and-white pumps with the solid leather heels are the best possible choice for a spectator at a sporting event; obviously, they are totally unsuited to playing. A variant of the heavy-soled brogue or Oxford, such as the ones worn in the illustration with the smart short socks, are the only possibility for a player. Our chic spectator, on the other hand, indubitably wears sunburn silk stockings in a dark shade.

The tweed top-coat would be correct for either player or observer—although it would, naturally, not be worn in action. It has no trimming save its excellently tailored lines. The fronts roll back in revers and continue into a collar with a back seam. The epaulet sleeves, the tailor-stitched center-back seam, and the buckled belt are smart details, and the roomy pockets formed by the inserted side panels are comfortable and practical touches. With it is worn a woolen basket-weave coat-frock which is selvage trimmed. The sleeves are optional. Probably, if it were to be used in active sports, the sleeves would be omitted; the large pleat in the circular front makes it quite suitable for playing. The back of the skirt is straight, and the blouse has no collar, only lapels. The other frock, sleeveless, is accompanied by a jersey pull-on jumper. The dress itself is of flat crepe. The front panel of the skirt is circular, and the scarf is joined to the right edge of the V neck. (Vogue Designs; coat No. 9,865; frock No. 9,870, and ensemble No. 9,872.)

What Today Means to You

JUNE 11.

By MARY BLAKE

"Gemini."

IF June 11 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m., from 6 p. m. to 8 p. m., and from 11 p. m. to 12 midnight. The danger periods are from 7 a. m. to 8 a. m., and from 3 p. m. to 4 p. m.

This date will be rather a quiet day as regards exterior events, but much spiritual, mental and psychic unfoldment may be expected. Heed your premonitions, no matter how ridiculous they may seem! First impressions will be the correct ones.

The child born on this day will be impetuous and persistent, and loath to yield a point. Although it will often manifest impatience, it will be quick to make amends. It will be very responsive to love and affection.

You give the impression to every one that you are an independent sort of person and one who is at ease in any situation. You do not desire to be a clinging vine type, and you could not artistically and naturally play such a role if you tried. There are always plenty, however, who are willing to trust your "sturdy-oak" strength and who are anxious to hang their troubles upon your shoulders. Like most capable and also generous people, you are overburdened with the duties which are thrust upon you. You should learn to say "no" as easily as you say "yes" now. You should learn to be a little more selfish with your time and strength.

You have rather an amused attitude toward life. It is all a game to you, and you are usually a lucky player. You have considerable sentiment stored in your heart, which you unexpectedly and occasionally reveal to the world. There is a streak of romantic idealism concealed behind your aristocratic and conventional mask. You very much dislike strong displays of feeling, and it takes rather a long time to win your affection; but once won, it is not hastily taken away. At times you give the impression of feeling a little "superior," but it is only your manner. You feel equal to, but not above, anybody.

TODAY'S WOMEN

By EARL MINDERMAN

JUNE 11.

JEANETTE RANKIN, first woman to be elected to the Congress of the United States, as born this day, 1880, on a ranch near Missoula, Mont. She was a member of the Sixty-fifth Congress, 1917-19. Previous to her election she was engaged in social service and suffrage work.

Mary August Ward, the English novelist, was born this day, 1851. Her novels, "Miss Britherton" and "Robert Elsmere," brought her world-wide fame. Her novels had considerable power on the social and ethical thought of England and the United States. She was one of the founders of the Women's National Antisuffrage League in 1908. She died in 1920.

Julia Claussen, prima donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company, was born this day, 1879, in Stockholm, Sweden. She has been decorated by King Gustavus V of Sweden.

Other famous women born this day include Anne Royall, crusading American journalist, 1769; Millicent Garrett Fawcett, English political economist, 1847; and Mary J. Rathbun, carcinologist, 1860.

Dare Interprets the Mode

"Fleur de Peche," a graceful evening dress of pink moire silk, trimmed with pink flowers. (Courtesy of Drecoll-Beer, Paris).

WE HAVE had the privilege recently of seeing some of the garments created from the new African fabric made from palm fibers about which we told you not long ago. It is lightweight, waterproof and very supple—sounds like the ideal fabric for summer wear, doesn't it?

One of these garments was a sleeveless jacquette in the natural color of the fiber, embroidered with the same palm fibers dyed in many bright colors, the design representing a pair of delightfully savage and primitive negroes with bows and arrows.

Another jacquette of beige, with cloth collar and cuffs, was likewise embroidered, in this case with what appeared to our unnaturalist eyes to be antelopes.

An attractive afternoon coat, straight in line, was black, embroidered in a futuristically geometric design of grege palm fibers. Another was of the natural color fiber, with incrustations of brightly colored linen, and at the shoulder a flower of the palm fabric. Two more were of navy blue, one with a geometric pattern woven in white fibers, the other embroidered in grege fibers and trimmed in white fabric.

And one of the "charmingest" of the sleeveless jacquettes was one of apricot (a very, very good color this season, by the way), with an embroidered African design in blue and green.

The wide open spaces!

Large unbroken areas of bare skin are neither attractive nor intriguing. The wise couturier, and the wise elegante, very well know this—and cover such areas with jewelry.

More often than not this is costume jewelry. Very often it even goes so far as to be part of the costume, and be fashioned of the beads or spangles or strass that trim the dress.

Do think it over!

Fleur de Peche—peach flower! Could there be a lovelier name for the beautiful and delightfully simple pink moire evening dress we have illustrated for you today? Drecoll-Beer are its creators, and lovely ladies its sponsors!

A tailored bathing suit is not only far, far less expensive than any other kind, but oh, how much more flattering!

We tell you how to make one very, very easily, in this week's illustrated leaflet, for which you may send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post. It's a style that will be smart for years, so even if you may not need a bathing suit this year, better send for it! You never can tell!

And ss-ssh, you'll find a lovely beach hat and bag in this leaflet, too!

Mme. Dare's weekly fashion letter in The Sunday Post contains much of interest, you should not overlook it.

Au Revoir!

A Most Individual
Chiffon Frock and Little Wrap

The Jelleff penchant for individuality includes evening ensembles, of course, because we know how smart women adore them . . . and we understand that they must have "that certain distinction" so inherent, for example, in this orchid ensemble of a Vionnet-line chiffon frock and a mere trifle of a transparent velvet wrap. $65

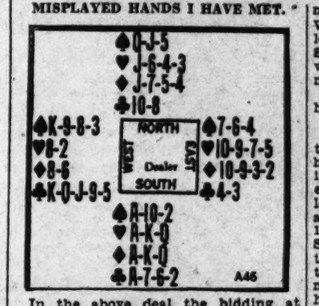
WORK ON BRIDGE

MISPLAYED HANDS I HAVE MET.



In the above deal the bidding at Auction Bridge would be: South one No Trump, the other three players passing.

At Contract it would be: South three No Trumps, the other three players passing. North would count his hand for a No Trump as 5 (the Queen 2 and each Jack 1)—9 is the minimum for a slam-suggesting jump of South's three No Trumps to four No Trumps.

Playing the hand at No Trump with South the Declarer, West's correct opening lead would be the King of Clubs. When I saw the hand played South held up his Ace of Clubs until the third round. He next led his three top Diamonds and then his three top Hearts. West discarded two Spades. South then led his Ace of Spades and another Spade. West won the second Spade with the King and took the two remaining tricks, saving game.

How should South have played the hand?

THE CORRECT PLAY.

The above play was perfect until the tenth trick. To that trick South should have led his losing Club, placing West in the lead. He knew that West had exactly two more Clubs. South could lose these two tricks and still go game; and as West must lead a Spade to trick 12, South must make the two last Spade tricks. Of course, if East held the King of Spades, South would take ten tricks (four-odd) by the play he made, which would be one more than he would win by the play advocated. But taking an extra trick which does not affect the making of contract, game or slam—the type of trick generally called immaterial—should not be considered when trying for it involves a risk of contract or game.

"Parking With Peggy"

Getting off on the honeymoon isn't nearly so hard as getting on after the return.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

MAN.

'Tis very curious, I think,
That man may choose his meat and drink,
The clothing he prefers to wear,
And just what burdens he will bear!
What joys he'll seek, what pleasures shun
And follow where his fancies run,
All other living creatures range
Within a field they can not change.

Who watches birds and beasts will find
That instinct rules each separate kind.
The purple martins chattering near Remain the same year after year.
Who looks at one will see them all,
They come in spring and leave in fall,
And never one elects to stay
When all its fellows fly away.

But free to reason and to choose,
Man shapes his life unto his views.
He dreams and plans and builds anew,
Selects his several pleasures, too.
Improves the old, and grows to be
A self-made personality.
Thus by the right of choice, mankind
May onward press or stay behind.

There must be something in the plan
Which gives such latitude to man.
If this brief life is all we'll know
In wisdom it is vain to grow.
Within us all a soul must dwell
Or instinct would have served as well;
The beasts within their field must stay.
But man has hope beyond his day.

Prices realized on Swift & Co. sales of carcass beef in Washington, D. C., for week ending Saturday, June 8, 1929, on shipments sold out ranged from 17.00 cents to 25.00 cents per pound and averaged 23.01 cents per pound.—Adv.

Women in business find that this modern sanitary protection means better health, greater opportunity for accomplishment.

IN offices throughout the country—in offices all over the world—women are realizing the full value of every working day, free from the problems which once retarded their progress. Kotex has not only meant new comfort and better health but it has brought a priceless mental relief.

Doctors and nurses have helped to teach women the importance of this new sanitary protection. They stress its soft, soothing comfort, its correct absorbency.

Fleecy, soft filler

Cellucotton absorbent wadding, which fills Kotex, offers a type of softness that no substitutes can equal. Surgeons in 85% of the company's leading hospitals insist upon Cellucotton absorbent wadding to give patients the greatest possible degree of hygienic comfort.

The new deodorant

To assure the utmost daintiness of person, Kotex now deodorizes by a process discovered and perfected in Kotex laboratories. This process has been patented* and is found in no other sanitary pad.

Corners cut and rounded

The fact that corners of the pad are now rounded and tapered means greater mental as well as physical comfort. This one improvement alone has impressed thousands of women, who write us in appreciation of its advantages.

Layers of filler are adjustable. The gauze, as well as the filler, is softer and gentler than ever. And Kotex is disposed of just like tissue. That fact alone has helped to change the hygienic habits of women all over the world.

SUPER-SIZE KOTEX
Formerly 90c—Now 65c
Some women find Super-size Kotex a special comfort. Exactly the same as the Regular size Kotex, but with added layers of Cellucotton absorbent wadding.

Try the new Kotex. It is 45c for a box of twelve at any drug, dry goods or department store. Also obtained in vending cabinets of rest-rooms. Kotex Company, 180 No. Michigan Ave., Chicago.

Time deposits were $10,000,000 lower in the New York district and $4,000,000 at all reporting banks.

The principal changes in borrowings from Federal Reserve banks for the week comprise gains of $15,000,000 at the Federal Reserve Bank of New York and $6,000,000 at Atlanta and decreases of $14,000,000 at Chicago and $10,000,000 at Philadelphia and Boston.

Last Call to Convention.

With issuance of the third and last call for the District of Columbia Bankers Association annual convention at Montauk Point, Long Island, N. Y., the advance party of the association which spent the week end at Montauk Point inspecting convention arrangements returned yesterday with good news for prospective convention attendants.

Expenditure of $2,000,000 in improvements at the convention site, excellent hotel service and club features, a bathing pool a city block long and well laid golf courses were reported. The new and handsomely furnished Island Club, to be made available for the entertainment of the bankers and their families through the courtesy of Carl Fisher, a show of New York's ablest theatrical talent and music by a hand-picked orchestra lately of the Waldorf Hotel, were other promised program features.

"We found a marked advance in improvements in the past year," said Thomas W. Brahany, chairman of the entertainment committee for the convention. Accompanying him on the advance arrangement mission were President Robert V. Fleming, of the association, C. H. Pope, general convention committee chairman; Harry L. Selby, chairman of the hotel committee; W. W. Spaid, vice chairman of the program committee, and F. G. Addison, member of the entertainment committee.

The last "call" states that association members and their families will leave for the convention, in session June 20-23, on a special train on the evening of June 19, and the committee must know at once how many to provide for. Claude H. Woodward, transportation committee chairman, is completing the list of travelers and Chairman Selby is checking hotel accommodations.

Stock Trading Increases.

Strength of Capital Traction stock and a two-and-a-half point rise for Washington Gas which attained a new top of 124, were features of interest in yesterday's session of the Washington Stock Exchange during which 391 shares changed hands, a gain of 134 over Friday's business and a $7,000 bond turnover marked a decline of $6,700 from last trading.

The gas stock advance came with a slight transfer, only fourteen shares being involved but the renewed strength of the Traction issue was exhibited in sales of thirteen blocks ranging from 2 to 15 shares and totaling 103. The stock came out at 94½, fractional advance from last sale price and advanced to a high of 95⅛ then reacted, the last two transfers going at 94 and 93¾. Washington Gas stock has been selling around 124 off the exchange for some time and its quotation now stands at 124 bid and 125 ask.

Record in Aviation Financing.

Financing for America's newest industry, aviation, has reached record proportions in the first four months of the current year with a total of $143,480,125 divided among more than twenty companies, according to A. O. Hunsacker, president of Aircraft Finance Corporation, a $30,000,000 acceptance corporation in the aviation field. This compares with new aviation financing amounting to $76,841,475 in the last quarter of 1928 and $500,000 in the first quarter of that year.

During the 16 months period from January, 1928, financing totaled $255,384,533, although in three months of

Properties Behind Smith Offerings—
No. 8, The Cavalier of Washington, D. C.

For the information of the public at large and particularly those who may be interested in The Cavalier of Washington, D. C., we invite attention to the following statement relative to this property and to an issue of bonds offered by this House.

STRONG SECURITY FOR BONDS
The Cavalier of Washington, D. C.

ONE of the soundest forms of investment is that which is secured by real estate—land chosen with a view to future as well as present values—buildings thereon that are adapted to a known rental demand. THE CAVALIER OF WASHINGTON, D. C., constitutes strong security for an issue of bonds offered by The F. H. Smith Company, for it occupies a unique location in the important upper Fourteenth Street district of Washington, D. C., one of the most thickly populated residential sections of the city, which is a community within itself. Here is a location chosen with a view to future as well as present values; here is a building adapted to a known rental demand. We believe this section is entitled to a fine apartment hotel and that this building fills a recognized need. In fact, there is probably no other section of Washington that is more in need of a well-managed apartment hotel than this rapidly growing upper Fourteenth Street community. The F. H. Smith Company has been a pioneer in financing the development of fine properties in the National Capital, not only in this section, but in the downtown business section and in the Potomac Park section. Time and again its sound judgment has been proven.

THE CAVALIER OF WASHINGTON, D. C., 3500 Fourteenth St., N. W.

The Cavalier of Washington, D. C., occupies the entire frontage on the west side of Fourteenth Street, Northwest, from Oak Street to Otis Place. It is a modern fireproof apartment hotel. On the first floor there is a spacious lobby, a public dining room and seven stores. Apartments range in size from one room and bath to six rooms and two baths.

A Smith Offering

In November 1928, The F. H. Smith Company offered an issue consisting of $1,950,000 principal amount of 6½% First and Refunding Mortgage Coupon Gold Bonds, to be secured upon completion of the present financing by a First and Refunding Mortgage on the land and building, including fixtures and equipment, known as The Cavalier of Washington, D. C. The bonds of said First and Refunding Mortgage issue mature serially, the maturities ranging from five to twenty years, so that the issue is to be reduced before final maturity to $1,560,000. There is also secured by this property a $350,000 6½% General Mortgage Bond issue which is subordinate to the first and refunding mortgage, and, until completion of the refunding, to the underlying mortgage.

Underlying Mortgage

The lien on this property which underlies the First and Refunding Mortgage consisted originally of $1,400,000 6¾% first mortgage bonds dated April 1, 1926, an equal principal amount of the first and refunding mortgage bonds being held by the Trustee under the first and refunding mortgage and released only as underlying bonds are retired and cancelled. To date (June 7th, 1929) the amount of this underlying lien has been reduced by the refunding operation to $568,500, as $831,500 principal amount of the bonds secured by the underlying mortgage have been retired and cancelled. Under the terms of the first and refunding deed of trust, the obligor covenants that on or before April 1, 1935, it will cause to be paid and satisfied all underlying bonds.

Valuation of Property $3,000,000

The Cavalier of Washington, D. C., was appraised by Ford, Bacon & Davis, Inc., nationally known engineers and appraisers, and their certificate of valuation is quoted below:

"Based upon our inspection of the Cavalier Apartments, an apartment hotel located at 3500 14th St., N. W., Washington, D. C., we hereby certify that the Estimated Cost of Reproduction New and the Estimated Cost of Reproduction New Less Depreciation of this physical property, comprising the land, hotel building and fixed equipment as existing November 1, 1928, based upon prices of materials and labor prevailing in Washington at that date, are as follows:

	Estimated Cost of Reproduction As of Nov. 1, 1928
	New	Less Depreciation
Land	$ 851,950	$ 851,950
Building and Mechanical Equipment	2,191,050	2,148,050
Total	$3,043,000	$3,000,000

"The value of land shown above has been furnished to us by responsible local real estate experts.

"The allowance made for depreciation represents the loss due to accrued physical deterioration, as observed by our engineer. Supersession, due to obsolescence, changes in business conditions, or to any other cause, has not been considered.

"The above estimated costs include allowances for cost of financing and such overhead costs as organization and legal expenses, engineering and architectural supervision, interest, taxes and insurance during the period of construction.

"Our inventory does not include furniture and fixtures, miscellaneous equipment, miscellaneous supplies chargeable to expense, or stationery.

"No allowance has been included in our estimates of building and mechanical equipment for any value attached to good will, advantage due to location, going concern, or any other elements of intangible property.

The opinion of Ford, Bacon & Davis, Inc., as to the value of this property was sought because their organization has a national reputation for ability and efficiency in this line of work.

In response to our recent inquiry, we have received the following letter from Ford, Bacon & Davis, Inc.:

"New York, June 6, 1929.

"Dear Sirs:

"In accordance with your suggestion, we are pleased to attach to this letter a folder which contains the names of a few of our industrial and banking clients. This, of course, is very incomplete and no mention is made of the very considerable clientele which we have among utilities. It may be of interest to you to know that we have recently completed the longest and largest high pressure gas line in the country, and that we are now carrying forward another similar enterprise in the South of even greater length. In addition, it may be of interest to you to know that it is not long since we completed the Pontchartrain Bridge, which at that time was the longest bridge of its type in the world. Our work has not only included projects of this character, but also harbor developments, irrigation systems, power house design and construction, electric street railway and utility operations. We believe any large financial house in the country is familiar with our work.

"Very truly yours,
"FORD, BACON & DAVIS, INC.

First and Refunding Mortgage Refinancing In General

First and Refunding Mortgage Bond issues, as the name implies, are utilized when a property is refinanced, it being necessary to retire existing liens during the period of refinancing. Consequently, First and Refunding Bonds are subordinate to the underlying liens until the obligor has retired such underlying liens. Under the terms of the Deed of Trust securing a First and Refunding Bond issue, bonds of such issue in excess of the amount of the obligations secured by all underlying liens are issued for sale at once, but the remaining bonds of such issue being equal in principal amount to the obligations secured by all underlying liens are not released at once, but are held by the Trustee named in the First and Refunding Deed of Trust. As the obligations (bonds or notes) secured by the underlying liens are retired and cancelled, bonds of the First and Refunding issue in equal amount are released by the Trustee. When all of the underlying liens have been retired and released the First and Refunding Bonds become complete First Mortgage Bonds.

Estimated Earnings as a Basis of Valuation

The earnings to be derived from a property which is properly adapted to the purpose for which it is to be used constitute a most important factor in the basis of valuation of the property. The earnings to be derived from The Cavalier of Washington, D. C., as estimated by The Cavalier Corporation, owner of the property, are given below. This estimate is a part of the representations made to us by the owner:

Gross annual earnings of The Cavalier Apartment-Hotel from all sources (including restaurant) with full rental would be		$369,597.00
Allowance for vacancies	$22,847.00
Allowing for operating expenses, including taxes, insurance, replacements of furniture and equipment, payrolls, restaurant, advertising, laundry, house supplies and other expenses	137,000.00	159,847.00
Leaves an estimated net annual income of		$209,750.00

The estimated net annual income of $209,750 being approximately 7% of $3,000,000 is an excellent return on the valuation of this type of property. These estimates were based upon the plan of the owner to convert a majority of the apartments into furnished apartments with hotel service, which, in the judgment of the owner, will produce the maximum income that may be obtained from this building considering its unique location and other advantages. It is estimated by the owner that between November 1, 1929, and January 1, 1930, the property will be approximately at its maximum income, since the management is not renewing any leases on one, two or three room unfurnished apartments, but is installing furniture as rapidly as these unfurnished apartments become vacant.

Rental Plan

The rentals under the plan upon which the above estimate of earnings was based compare favorably with those of other well-managed apartment hotels in Washington. Rentals were estimated as follows:

(The furnished apartments have complete hotel service while the unfurnished apartments do not.)

	Per Year
5 apartments of 1 Room and bath furnished, at $82.50 per month	$4,950.00
81 apartments of 2 Rooms, containing vestibule, living room, dinette, kitchenette, dressing closet, Murphy bed and bath (some with porches) furnished, at $93.50 per month	90,882.00
75 apartments of 3 Rooms, containing vestibule, living room, bedroom, dinette and kitchenette, dressing closet, Murphy bed and bath (some with porches) furnished, at $123.75 per month	111,375.00
30 apartments of 4 Rooms, containing vestibule, living room, bedroom, dining room, kitchen and bath (some with porches) unfurnished, at $110.00 per month	39,600.00
25 apartments of 5 Rooms, unfurnished, containing vestibule, living room, two bedrooms, dining room, kitchen and bath (some with porches) at $126.50 per month	37,950.00
2 apartments of 6 Rooms, unfurnished, containing vestibule, living room, three bedrooms, dining room, kitchen, 2 baths and porch, at $160.00 per month	3,840.00

In addition there are seven stores which the owner estimated will yield $9,000 per year and a dining room which it estimated will produce a gross income of $72,000 a year, based upon daily receipts of $200 per day, thirty days per month, when the property is in complete hotel operation.

The above rental plan aggregates $369,597.00.

Smith offerings of real estate mortgage bonds are fundamentally sound because they are based upon well located real estate—land chosen with a view to the future as well as present values—buildings that are adapted to a known rental demand

STOCKS' PRICES SAG AS CREDIT TIGHTENS

Trading Shrinks to Lowest Full Day's Level Since Last August.

FEW POINTS ARE STRONG

New York, June 10 (A.P.).—A tightening of credit, with the approach of the mid-month settlement period, discouraged activity on the stock market today, and prices were inclined to sag. The volume of trading dwindled to the lowest level for a full day since the middle of last August. Sales totaled only 2,201,230 shares.

Although call money has been much more plentiful this month than had been expected, the rate amounted to 8 per cent today for the first time in more than three weeks. Banks called more than $40,000,000 in loans, presumably to cut down their borrowing at the Federal Reserve Banks, which were increased over the month-end.

The credit outlook continued highly uncertain. Income tax payments come due on June 15, and the major part of the large volume of stock rights expiring within the next few weeks are still to be exercised. The Government refinancing June 15 is an element of particular uncertainty, as a Treasury overdraft in connection with it may make credit unexpectedly plentiful for a few days. Time money eased slightly with all maturities loaning at 8¼ per cent flat.

Rumors Again Plentiful.

Rumors of an increase in the Federal Reserve rediscount rate were again plentiful, apparently inspired by the fixing of the 5½ per cent coupon rate on the new Treasury notes, which is above the 5 per cent charge for rediscounting. While it had been rumored for some time that the rediscount rate would be jacked up to 6 per cent, equaling the commercial paper rate, a 5½ per cent rate was talked of today.

The only item in the day's news to which Wall street paid more than passing attention was the United States Steel Corporation's report of unfilled tonnage as of May 31, showing a decrease for the month of 13,596 tons. This was viewed as mighty favorable, as the May decline for the previous two years has exceeded 400,000 tons, and Wall street had expected a decline of at least from 150,000 to 200,000 this year, in view of the record ingot production and shipments.

Provides Only Excitement.

Commonwealth Power provided about the only excitement of the session, running up 28 points to 208, then dropping to 196 at the close. The stock dropped more than 30 points late last week, after reaching a record price at 218½. Today's run-up was attributed to a rush of shorts to cover on reports of a new exchange offer by Commonwealth and Southern Corporation. Federal Light & Traction was bid up about 2 points to a new top above 100, but elsewhere in the utility group profit taking was in evidence.

Other strong points included National Distilling issues and U. S. Industrial Alcohol, which mounted 4 or 5 points on merger prospects; General Asphalt, which reached new high ground on reports of segregation of its petroleum refining business; Fleischmann, again accumulated on rumors that it will be the key company in a new food products combine, and Allis Chalmers, American Bank Note, Boughs, Lambert & Warren Bros., up 2 to 5 points.

Coppers Generally Firmer.

Coppers were generally firmer, and continued picking up on foreign business. Oils failed to respond to the convening of the governors conference at Colorado Springs, but Indiana Refining made an extreme gain of about four points on reports that negotiations to lease its cracking process to Texas Corporation had been practically completed.

Motors were generally heavy, with the exception of Hudson, which mounted more than a point on stock dividend rumors. Packard dropped 4 points on reports that Wright was also taking up a Diesel aviation motor, and General Motors closed off 1½ points. Auburn fell back 5 points.

U. S. Steel, Allied Chemical, Curtiss, International Telephone, National Biscuit, Stromberg Carburetor, and Woolworth were among a wide assortment of issues losing from 2 to 5 points. Mullins Manufacturing and Pittsburgh Terminal Coal dropped 6 points to a new 1929 low, and Philadelphia Co. tumbled 9 points, but regained part of its loss. Rails were heavy several issues losing a point or two.

The action of the commodity markets was again unsettling. Wheat fell back 3½ to 4 cents on good weather in the Southwest and Canada, and bearish crop estimates, and corn sagged 2½ to 3 cents on bearish Nebraska reports. Cotton dropped 70 to 80 cents a bale on lower Liverpool cables and weather reports. Raw sugar futures were again depressed, July dropping to another new low at 1.61 cents.

Foreign exchanges were dull and fairly steady, although the Italian lira touched a new low for the year at 5.22 5-8 cents. Sterling cables held at $4.84⅞.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, June 10 (A.P.).—An early decline in cotton today on relatively easy cables and favorable weather was checked by trade buying of near months and covering, but prices weakened again in the later trading when sentiment seemed to be influenced by reports of an easier tone in grain and stocks. October contracts, after selling up from 18.65 to 18.72 eased off to 18.58. They closed at 18.61 with the general market closing steady at net declines of 14 to 16 points.

The opening was barely steady at a decline of 6 to 12 points. The active months showed net losses of 11 to 17 points during the first few minutes under liquidation by recent buyers and some local selling. This was evidently inspired by lower Liverpool cables than expected on the New York close of Saturday and also by weather reports indicating that the weather in the South had been generally clear over the week-end except for showers or rains in the Eastern belt.

Trade interests were buyers of July against sales of later deliveries at a discount of about 18 to 19 points under October. There was also considerable covering in later deliveries and some commission house buying at about 18.80 for December. This demand proved sufficient to absorb the offerings and to hold the market fairly steady at rallies of a few points from the lowest during the middle of the day. The buying was not active or aggressive, however, and prices eased off again later under selling which may have been partly for Western and Wall street account. The decline, which was accompanied by comment on the easier ruling of the grain market, extended to 18.41 for July and 18.75 for December making net losses of about 17 to 19 points from Saturday's closing quotations. Closing prices were 2 or 4 points up from the lowest on covering.

A private report published before the opening estimated the increase in acreage at 4 per cent and said a comparatively dry warm June would put the plant in excellent shape. Private cables said realizing had supplied some local and continental buying in Liverpool. Exports today, 24,205 bales making 7,796,307 so far this season. Port receipts 2,553. U. S. port stocks, 997,112.

FIVE CAPITAL GOLFERS QUALIFY IN U. S. OPEN TRIALS

Bracey Asked To Race In D. C. Meet

Conqueror of Simpson, in East, May Run in South Atlantics.

Ohio State Star Hurts Leg, Causing Doubt He Will Appear.

By JACK ESPEY.

EFFORTS are being made by officials of the South Atlantic track and field championships to bring Claude Bracey, famous Rice Institute sprinter of Houston, Tex., here to race George Simpson, Ohio State University record-smasher, and "Pete" Bowen, Pittsburgh University star, in the feature 100-yard dash of the meet Saturday at Central Stadium.

The "Houston Express," who finished second to Simpson last Saturday at Chicago when the Ohio State streak hung up a mark of 9.4 seconds in the century, is now in New York City training for a special race next Monday at the Yankee Stadium. South Atlantic officials, learning of Bracey's whereabouts last night, immediately wired him an invitation to appear here and once more compete against Simpson, whom he had always defeated prior to last Saturday.

Simpson injured his right leg in the 220-yard dash at Chicago last Saturday following his record-breaking century race. On account of this, according to Frank R. Casselman, his trainer, there is a doubt that he will be able to compete here. In a telegram sent from Ohio State University, Columbus, Ohio, to Winfree Johnson, secretary of the South Atlantic games committee, Casselman stated last night that whether Simpson will run this week-end will not be determined until Thursday.

Simpson's Condition to Be Known Thursday.

After running the historic "nine-two century," beating Bracey to the tape by a scant stride, Simpson clicked off the 220-yard dash in 20.8 seconds, just two-tenths of a second slower than the accepted world's record made by Roland Locke, of Nebraska University, in 1926. Everything is being done to get Simpson in shape for the South Atlantic dash, Casselman told Secretary Johnson.

Until their Chicago meeting, Bracey generally was considered Simpson's superior. The Rice Institute star not only had beaten Simpson several times before, but had consistently run the hundred in 9.7 or faster. On March 30 at Dallas, Tex., Bracey registered 9.4 with a wind at his back, and the day before at Austin he had done 9.5 without the aid of wind. In the spring of 1928, Bracey several times was clocked in 9.5. He was selected as national 100- and 220-yard champion by the Amateur Athletic Union for 1928.

Should Bracey accept the local invitation, Simpson would find himself opposed by two rivals each of whom is anxious to avenge recent defeat at his hands. Bowen was conquered by Simpson in the Penn relays and the Ohio relays this spring.

Blocks May Void Record Time of Simpson in Dash

New York, June 10 (U.P.).—The apparent world record set by George Simpson, Ohio State, in winning the 100-yard dash at the N. C. A. A. track and field meet, Chicago, last Saturday, may never be officially recognized, Dan Ferris, secretary of the Amateur Athletic Union, indicated today.

Simpson used starting blocks at Chicago when he ran the 100 in 9 2-5 seconds—one-fifth of a second faster than the recognized world record.

These blocks have never been approved by either the A. A. U. or the International Amateur Athletic Federation, the bodies which designate the world records, Ferris pointed out.

This action would be impossible, However, unless the A. A. U., at its annual meeting in November, approves the use of the starting blocks, making such action retroactive to include Simpson's time, Ferris said.

BROWNS GET HOPKINS ON WAIVERS

PITCHER PAUL HOPKINS leaves for New York today to join the St. Louis Brown, having been released by the Nats via the waiver route, President Clark Griffith announced last night. Hoking was obtained by the Nationals from the New Haven Club in 1927, after he had starred in the box for Colgate University. Strings have been retained on him ever since and he was recalled this spring after having performed fairly well last season while with the Montreal Internationals.

Hopkins is rated as a smart pitcher by Manager Walter Johnson and he has turned in one or two good relief shifts this season.

In the hope of making it two victories out of three games in the current series with the Indians, Manager Walter Johnson plans to use Fred Marberry on the hill this afternoon. Since the injuries to Adolph Liska and "Sad Sam" Jones, the big Texan, after having been told that he would be switched back to the role he made famous—as a relief artist—has had to take a regular turn on the hill and he has been quite successful.

Walter Miller, the southpaw who is having an exceptionally good year after several mediocre ones, is likely to do the mound work for Peckinpaugh's Tribe.

Indians Take 4-3 Decision From Nats

3-Run Lead Is Erased But Hadley Yields a Run in 6th.

Falk Hits Home Run in First; Holloway Is Puzzle on Mound.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

MANAGER ROGER PECKINPAUGH made two guesses as to pitchers yesterday and he was right with respect to one of them, therein lying the story of the Nationals' 4-to-3 defeat, which incidentally marked the fifteenth occasion this season on which they have been nosed out by a single run.

Having heard that Johnson's henchmen were weak against left-handed pitching, Peck started Joe Shaute on the hill against them, but it only took the home team a little more than three innings to show him his mistake. Then along came Kenneth Holloway, with what the Nationals call his "nothing" ball, and he not only stopped a native rally dead in its tracks, but finished out the string without granting a solitary safety in five and one-third innings.

Irving Hadley's performance was not a poor one, but he had troubles enough in two frames to cost him the ball game. He started poorly, walking Jamieson, first up, and Fonseca turned this walk into a run by doubling to right After Averill had lofted to Goslin and J. Sewell was credited with a single when his ball hit Fonseca, who was out while rushing to third, Bib Falk came through with a four-base clout over the right-field wall.

Indians Need 2 Singles, 2 Doubles And Pass to Mould Winning Run.

Fonseca tripled with one out in the third when Flagstead misjudged the drive, but the Nationals pulled out of this hole by stopping the return peg in time to trap the runner who was still deciding whether or not to try to stretch the clout into a homer.

In only one other inning was Hadley in serious trouble, the sixth, after the Nats had knotted the count at 3-all. In this frame, it is hard to figure without seeing the happenings, how the Indians could score but one run on so much batting activity, for they benefited from the four hits, including two doubles, and a base on balls.

One lucky break for the Nats was that Jamieson, who led off with a single, was caught stealing before the next up, rolled to Cronin, and then the cyclone struck. Averill doubled and scored on J. Sewell's one-shot, while the latter was able to travel no farther than to third on Falke's double. With two balls called on L. Sewell, Johnson ordered Hadley to finish intentionally what he started, filling the bases. Peck then sent Dick Porter to the plate to hit for Lind, and Hadley fanned him, much to the delight of the comparatively small but enthusiastic crowd.

Shaute Pulls Out of Hole With Only One Run.

As things turned out, this was the only run of the game which the Nationals could not match. They wasted two hits in the second frame, when Judge and Ruel came through, and then knotted the count in the next two sessions, in both of which they blew opportunities to do more damage.

Myer opened round three with a double and carried on to third on Rice's single, scoring when Lind booted Goslin's roller. With still none out and men on second and first, Shaute managed to wiggle out of the hole by forcing Flagstead, Cronin and Judge out on flies.

One was in the morgue when the home team staged its two-run rally in the next canto. Then Ruel coaxed a pass, and all hands were safe when Falk dropped Hadley's liner. Myer picked this spot to insert a single which scored the catcher and sent Hadley to third and, after Rice's tap had been turned into a fielder's choice in which Hadley was nipped at the plate, Goslin singled Myer home, sending Rice to third and taking second on the throw-in. Holloway then pulled a rescue act and forced West, who replaced Flagstead at the tee and later afield, to roll to Tavener.

This was the natives' last chance, for Holloway had them eating out of his hand over the balance of the route, walking the only Nat who saw base life in the last five frames.

Myer and Rice each obtained two of the seven hits garnered by the Nationals, while Falk, who added a double to his homer, led the alien attack, with Fonseca and J. Sewell pressing him for honors. A double play by the Cronin-Hayes-Judge combination, robbing Holloway of a hit at its beginning, was the fielding feature of the game.

Proctor's Foe Collapses After 2-Round Knockout

Special to The Washington Post.

Atlantic City, June 10.—Joe Proctor, Washington heavyweight, scored an easy knockout victory over Frankie Brown, of California, in the semifinal of a fight card here tonight. Brown was so severely injured that he was removed to a hospital for treatment and Proctor was ordered to remain here pending the outcome.

Hospital authorities later said Brown's condition was good, and that he would probably be released tomorrow.

After a minute of sparring in the second round, Proctor nailed Brown with a right hand under the heart, sending the Californian to the canvas for the count. Brown was unconscious for ten minutes, and upon regaining his senses collapsed again and was rushed to the hospital. Proctor weighed 181 pounds; Brown, 197.

3 WALKS WIN 1-0 GAME FOR TIGERS

Ruffing's Wildness in One Inning Defeats Red Sox.

BOSTON, June 10 (A.P.).—Three successive passes by Pitcher Charley Ruffing in the seventh inning after Heilmann had singled, gave the Detroit Tigers a 1-to-0 victory over the Red Sox here today. Ruffing issued only one other base on balls and yielded only four hits.

The Sox threatened in the early innings, but remarkable fielding by the visitors prevented a score. In the second inning, with two out, Williams doubled. After Berry had walked, Ruffing singled sharply to left, but Johnson's perfect throw to Shea cut off Williams at the plate.

U. S. GOLFERS TRIUMPH IN ENGLAND

Grant, Baugh, Crane Score in British Amateur Event.

By FRANK H. KING
(Associated Press Staff Writer).

SANDWICH, England, June 10 (A.P.).—Seventy-six of the 125 first-round matches of the British amateur golf championship were played today in fine weather. There were no real upsets, but considerable disappointment because the gallery did not get a chance to see John Dawson, the Chicago player, in battle action.

Dawson's opponent scratched his entry and the American, after winning by default, went out to play a practice match with John De Forest, former school boy star.

Three Americans won their matches, Douglas Grant, after a titanic struggle with Dr. H. D. Gillies, over a stretch of nineteen holes. They halved eight holes running and twelve in all. R. H. Baugh, jr., Birmingham, Ala., Oxford student, won a difficult match, and Joshua Crane surprised many by downing Carl Bhetrehton, one of the best players of the Midlands district. The Boston veteran, after being 2 down and 4 to play, won four holes straight. He sank long putts from the corners of the fifteenth and seventeenth greens.

49 Matches in First Round Are Scheduled for Today.

T. A. Torrance defeated young Robert Sweeney, of New York, burying him under an avalanche of 3s. The tall Scotsman scored six 3s in twelve holes.

Forty-nine first round matches are to be played tomorrow morning. Philip Perkins, the champion, Roger Wethered, Maj. C. O. Mezlet and Max Behr are among the players to appear.

Pardee Erdman, Los Angeles, advanced to the second round when his opponent defaulted and will play Gobert.

Dawson will not play tomorrow but in the second round Wednesday draws Dr. J. C. MacCormack, a long-driving Irishman, who defeated Israel Sidebottom today.

FIVE Washington golfers came through triumphantly in the qualifying round played yesterday on various courses for eligibility to participate in the annual open championship to be played on the Winged Foot Golf Course, Long Island, on June 27. The contestants who survived the test yesterday were Fred McLeod, Columbia Country Club professional; Roland Mackenzie, Columbia, amateur; Gene Larkin, assistant professional, Chevy Chase Club; Maurice J. McCarthy, jr., Washington Golf and Country Club amateur, and George J. Voigt, now registered from North Hills, but who is still a member of the Bannockburn Club.

While this quintet of local players are now eligible to compete in the national open, disaster overtook eight others who had hoped to survive the qualifying round. J. Monro Hunter, Indian Spring, and Alex (Sandy) Armour, Congressional professionals, who qualified last year at Oakmont, fell by the wayside yesterday in the Pittsburgh district test, together with Robert T. Barnett, Chevy Chase, and A. B. Thorn, Town and Country. All of the Washington professionals who went to Richmond to play over the course of the Hermitage Country Club failed to qualify. The quartet were Mel Shorey, East Potomac Park; Al Treder, Manor; A. L. Houghton, Harper Country Club, and Walter Cunningham, Burning Tree.

McLeod Failed to Qualify Only Twice in Quarter Century.

A feat called remarkable is the fact that Fred McLeod, playing the long and difficult Oakmont course at Pittsburgh yesterday, should be among the leaders, tying for fourth place with a card of 161. McLeod has been playing in national open tournaments for more than a quarter of a century, winning the national open at Braeburn, near Boston, 21 years ago. During all these years he has been a serious contender in every national open, and only twice has he failed to qualify, losing out at Skokie and at Scioto by a single stroke. The fact that he can hold his own against the players who have come up with a newer generation is a tribute to his undoubted skill.

It was to be expected that Voigt,

ROYAL JULIAN HALTS SILVERDALE'S 6-RACE STREAK

McLean Stable Colt Second at Latonia

Perfect Alibi Victor Over Favorite in Second Race.

Two Records Broken by Chestnut Oaks and Canaan.

LATONIA RACE TRACK, Ky., June 10 (A.P.).—The feature event of the card here today, the Hotel Metropole purse for 3-year-olds and up over the mile and 70 yards distance was won by W. H. Whitehouse's 5-year-old horse, Royal Julian, which snapped the six-race winning streak of the McLean stable's consistent colt, Silverdale, which was second. The Audley farm's The Choctaw was third. The event was worth $1,100 to the winner. The scratching of Barbara narrowed the field to five starters.

Royal Julian was held in restraint close behind the leaders for the first five furlongs, where he found an opening on the inside and gradually wore Silverdale down in a long, hard drive to win by a neck. Silverdale, off fast and assuming the lead to well in the stretch, weakened slightly in the last 70 yards to take the place money by four lengths. The Choctaw, away well and the contender during the first half of the race, held on stubbornly through the stretch drive to take third money by a nose. Ben Machree, racing in last position to the stretch, came with usual rush, but just failed to get in the money.

The winner paid his backers $12.58 for a $2 mutuel.

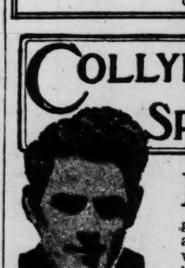
COLLYER'S COMMENT on the SPORT of KINGS

BY BERT E. COLLYER



DERBY TRIAL!

Col. Matt Winn, Col. W. Hay, Col. Charles Foster, Brig. Gen. "Lionel" Dempsey, apologies to Harry Hockstader and Private Bedwell, are a unit today, that there will be 100,000 souls waiting in line to place their two megs right slam bang on the beezer of their derby favorite Saturday. Because of this and other hopes, we have a "Derby Trial" this afternoon out at Washington Park which looks like an eagle bird for WINDY CITY; on the other hand, the clean, we have a radio message from our buddy, John McKee, in which the sage of Cincinnati way went to the effect, "Listen, Bert, don't take that race in the Fairmount Derby too seriously, the horse had a bad night. Barring accidents NAISHAPUR will be on the front end."

On top of this, "Timmy" Hay, ye gods and little fishes, I left off the monicker Hays, "This horse of mine, JUDGE HAY, improved with every race. Watch him come home." As far as I'm concerned, I hope all four of the starters win. Ye wekkum!

Down at Fairmount Park, where Bre'er Head is reported as having a banner meeting and where the starting is worse than anything we have heard of except possibly when "Curley" Brown was wielding the flag at Jacksonville, the special is none other than CLAY PIGEON, which is to be yanked forth from the old vat this aft. Never mind where I got this from, or how it got all this distance from home. I am slipping it to you, and I don't mean maybe.

MILES PRYOR has been racing fairly consistently and should be right bang up with BIG STICK and SERGEANT SETH chasing the other hounds home. THE SQUIRE, which was a heavily backed commission horse last time, is given another try in the sixth. This looks like the spot for the "gype" to unbelt. Better string along with the kale.

RECORD GOLF FIELD ENTERED IN COLUMBIA EVENT

384 Compete In Medal Rounds

Linksmen to Be Busy All Day Tomorrow and Wednesday.

Best Players in Section Are Entered in Tourney.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

WITH a list of 384 entries, which is almost a record-breaker for golf tournaments in this section, the Columbia Country Club will open its annual spring invitation tournament tomorrow morning, with the field divided into 18-hole rounds tomorrow and Thursday. From 7:40 tomorrow morning until nearly 4 o'clock in the afternoon there will be a steady procession of contestants from the first tee, while on Thursday play will begin as early as 7:20 o'clock in the morning and will continue at five-minute intervals until 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

Up to a late hour last night there was a constant pressure to secure time for play, but the golf committee, after adding about 40 names yesterday, decided that it was impossible to make further additions to the list.

The entrants include all of the prominent golfers in the District, and as the course is in fine condition and is fast, owing to the dry condition of the fairways, it is not likely that any score over 90 will be eligible for match play in the five sixteens which are to qualify.

Best Golfers in Section to Compete for Prizes and Glory.

Revived by MERLE W. HERSEY

(Copyright Protected Reproduction in Whole or in Part Prohibited.)

In the second chapter the Bradys offer to escort the banker and his daughter to Blueburg; the banker suspects them as part of the gang and slips away without them. The Bradys follow closely and come upon the banker tied up to a flagpole in front of a ruined house; his suitcases gone and his daughter abducted by the gang. They release the banker and decide to wait a while to see what happened. The banker acts queerly.

TRAPPING THE "TERROR" OF TODDLETON.

CHAPTER THREE.

Harry Finds Himself in Strange Company.

WHEN Old King Brady heard the maniacal shrieks he dashed off toward the forest. He found the horses, where he had left them, but Harry and the banker had disappeared.

Young King Brady had been caught unaware. He had been watching the banker who had begun to pray for the safety of his daughter. Harry fell to thinking over what had occurred but was suddenly startled by the same shriek that had aroused Old King Brady. He started up just as Turner sprang to his feet and darted off among the trees. Again he yelled, and still again as he ran on in the darkness.

Harry dashed after the man, shouting to him again and again, with no effect. He soon lost him and paused. "I've made a mess of things now," he muttered. He called again and got no reply. It was a despairing state of affairs. He decided to go back but found himself hopelessly confused as to direction. "This is the worst yet. What in thunder shall I do?"

He started off after a moment, satisfied that he was going in the right direction. He was soon brought up with a round turn, however, for all at once he came upon a broad opening directly in his path. He sat down on a log and tried to think.

"The best thing for me is to sit still until morning. But then the governor! He'll be prowling about the woods after me all night. "He was thinking this when suddenly a dark form rose up directly at his feet. It was a big strapping darkey.

"Hol' on dere, ah've got yo'," he cried. 'Don' yo' go to move or ah'll shoot!"

"Come, come!" stammered Young King Brady, badly scared for once in his life. "You don't want to shoot me, Sam."

A rustle behind him warned Harry that worse was to come. In an instant he was seized about the neck and tumbled over backward. It was a white boy who had him down, a big, spare, hulk of a fellow with long yellow hair and bulging blue eyes. His face wore a semiidiotic expression on it.

"Say, Boney, who am hit?" he cried.

"Nebber seed him befo', Marse Tom. Let's look him ovah."

"All right, Boney; but look hyer, Mebbe he's the kind paw wants."

"Ah wouldn't wonder, Marse Tom. Hol' him an' ah'll go froo his pockets."

He bent down over Harry and was just going to feel in the young detective's pocket when he got both feet full in the forehead. He fell over. At the same instant Harry struck the white boy in the stomach, and he sprang back with a yell.

Quick as a flash Harry was on his feet. "What's the matter with you both?" he cried. "I'm lost in the woods. It will pay you best to show me the way out, boys. I want to find the Blueburg road, can't you show me the way?"

"Yaas, termorrer. We kean't find the way in the dark."

Harry had to be satisfied with that for the moment, but he persisted. "Can't you take me over to the road first? I've got a friend waiting for me there. We'll go home then."

"Naw yer don't. Yer'll go with us right neow, or Boney will shoot."

It was no use. The darkey held him covered.

"Hain't yer going froo his pockets?" suggested Boney.

"Now, boys, you try that and there's going to be trouble," said Harry. "I've got a charm about me that will keep me from getting hit with a bullet every time." He displayed his detective's shield.

Tom bent forward to look at it. The darkey lowered his gun and backed off. The two consulted a minute then announced they were ready to start. So the three started off, following the edge of the ravine for about three-quarters of a mile. Here a tree trunk had been thrown across the gap. They crossed over and after following numerous winding pathways through the forest came upon an old log hut.

Boney gave a shrill whistle while Tom shouted: "Hey, paw! Come out, paw! We've captured a Yank what kin read!"

The Fight at the Ruined House.

Old King Brady, finding both Harry and Turner missing, quickly divined the truth. He shouted several times but got no answer. He waited ten or fifteen minutes and nothing happened. He then returned to the house. Scarcely had he reached it when he heard the sound of approaching horses. He had fully expected this. "I'll watch out from one of the upper windows, then I can both see and hear," he said to himself. He hurried up the rickety stairs. After assuring himself that he was the only one in the building he decided to wait in the front room. Flashing his light about he made a discovery which pleased him well. Stowed away in an obscure corner was a peddler's pack. It appeared to be stuffed with goods. "This is the very thing I want—I can get into Toddleton if things go that way."

A party of five men came clattering into the yard. Here was Big Bart Brown, surely! The leader was a man of gigantic proportions. He must have stood six-feet-six in his stockings, and well built. He had long yellow hair hanging down to his shoulders, under a broad-brimmed white hat—much like the one that Old King Brady always wore. Besides this he had a long yellow beard. Long rawhide boots came almost to his waist around which was a deerskin belt, stuck full of revolvers and bowie knives.

"What's this yere?" roared the Terror of Toddleton, as he halted before the flickering torch. "Get inside and see if Jim left any message, Bike."

A moment later Bike returned with the message which Old King Brady had left where he found it. Brown read the letter and then burst into a hearty laugh.

"Jim wouldn't believe them grips was a fake, but now he knows I was right. But, say, where's the banker? Jim says he took the gal—that's the main thing."

Judging from the tone of voice the Terror was not altogether pleased, the capture of the banker appearing to have something to do with his plans. He had Bike extinguish the torch, they all dismounted and went in the house Old King Brady could not make out just what they were up to. Half an hour passed. Then the clatter of hoofs was heard, and in a moment a party of seven men turned into the yard. Five of them were mounted, two were in an old buggy. One man dismounted and walked boldly toward the house. Out rushed Big Bart and his gang. In an instant revolvers were drawn and the air rang with fierce cries and oaths. Both sides blazed away for all they were worth, and the bullets did fatal work. Almost in less time than it takes to tell the fight was over. Of Big Bart's men three were dead, and five of the newcomers had met a like fate. The remaining two of this gang took to their heels.

"Kill 'em! Down with them!" yelled Bike Brown, running after them, firing as he went.

Big Bart gave a roar and dashed after the men.

"Now is my time," muttered Old King Brady. The saddle horses had stampeded, but the buggy horse had not stirred. There was something in the back of the buggy covered with an old piece of canvas. Whatever it was Old King Brady decided it was the cause of all the row. He slipped down the stairs and passed hastily outside.

He threw aside the canvas and a wicker hamper of considerable size was exposed. He lifted it out of the buggy, and staggered into the woods with it. Picking his way, he came to a little hollow. Here he deposited his burden and then crept back to the house.

Still firing could be heard in the distance. Old King Brady decided he might as well take the buggy, so he jumped in, picked up the reins and turning, drove back along the road toward Guyon. A short distance down the road he drove in among the trees and then got out, tied the horse and retraced his steps back to the house. There was no one in sight, except the dead men who had been dragged to one side.

"Big Bart still lives," thought Old King Brady. "But where is he?"

BOND MART TRADING IS LIGHTEST OF YEAR

Rail Issues Hold Fairly Firm While Utilities and Industrials Ease Off.

CONVERTIBLE LIST LAGS

New York, June 10 (A.P.).—The long-suffering bond market had a relapse today and not only did the price average show the first decline of the month, but the volume of trading, $7,000,000 par value, was the lowest of the year.

The slump was due not to liquidation but to complete lack of interest. Large investors as well as the occasional bond buyer apparently believed that the credit situation held few promising prospects in view of the heavy demands for funds with which to meet such obligations as income tax payments and corporation dividends and interest, which fall due to the extent of more than half a billion during the remainder of the month. Time money was a trifle easier, ruling at 8¼ against 8⅛ to 8½ last week, but even this favorable factor brought no show of confidence.

Rails held firm with a fair degree of consistence, but utilities and industrials eased off. Bethlehem Steel Refunding 5s made a new low of 98 on a net decline of 2 points and Indiana Limestone 6s, off 1½, were also in new low ground. Trumbull Steel Debenture 6s dipped nearly a point to equal the year's bottom at 101.

A few representatives in the rail division showed weakness. These included Indianapolis Union Railway 5s, off 5 points to 97; Long Island Unified 4s, off 3½ and Norfolk & Western general 6s, off 1½, all to new 1929 lows. The declines were made on negligible turnovers. Missouri Pacific 5s, '78, Seaboard Airline adjustment 5s, and St. Paul adjustment 5s, on the other hand, improved.

Convertibles, with the exception of the American Telephone 4½ per cent share privilege issue, lagged behind their usual brisk pace, and sold lower at the close on the weakness of the stocks. The telephone bond, declining 1½, accounted for about one-twelfth of the day's volume.

United States Government securities, purchased rather liberally last week for the Federal Reserve Bank's portfolio, were almost entirely neglected. The only issue to show any sign of life was the Fourth Liberty 4¼. Price changes in this group were within a ¼ point margin.

French bonds attracted the best attention among the foreigns, and made a show of strength around midday, although the final prices failed to maintain the advance. The remainder of the foreign obligations moved irregularly on somewhat better turnovers than appeared in the domestic list.

New bond financing for the week includes a $6,500,000 issue of Federal Water Service 5½ per cent convertible gold debentures, due in 1954, to be offered at 99.

BEHIND THE SCREENS

With NELSON B. BELL

There have been those who have professed a deep and abiding regret that William Haines has not, during the major portion of his stellar career, been supplied with "better vehicles," meaning, no doubt, pictures affording him an opportunity to be serious. These clamors evidently percolated finally to the ears of the producing executives of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and they decided to attempt what was probably made to appear as a belated compliance with public demand. I'm sorry they did this.

It has always been my view that Mr Haines is in a class by himself in the depiction of the smart-aleck type of youth. He is the one actor I know upon the screen who can be the village cutup or the big-town clown consistently throughout the length of a six- or seven-reel feature. It is the one thing he seems peculiarly endowed to do best, and being a convincing fool for so many reels is by no means an easy order. Engaged in this exacting endeavor, Mr. Haines, as I have said, has no peer. Gone serious, he is no better than forty other reasonably competent players who might be named.

In "A Man's Man," current at the Palace, Haines is best when allowed to do the sort of stuff that made him famous in the first place. Fortunately, there is enough of this flippancy to pull the picture out of the fire and to afford me a defense for a Monday statement to the effect that I can summon to mind no one who could play his part better than Mr. Haines plays it himself.

Restrict his activities to the somber requirements of a serious "straight" part and he becomes merely one of an army that can be bought in the open market at a dime a dozen—or thereabouts. For the benefit of those who like good, clean fun, I suggest the following campaign slogan:

"Don't hamper Haines!"

By a strange coincidence, this seems to be "chorus girl contest" week on F street. At the Fox, the fourteen Foxettes, under the supervisory tutelage of Melba Vierday, premiere danseuse, are staging a number in which the competition is conducted by groups—ballet, modern stage, taps and acrobatic. Down at the corner of Thirteenth street, the Foster Girls in the "Circus Cabaret," also divide into groups in an equine number that gives them a chance to cavort as bay, white and black steeds.

The acrobatics and the whites won their respective heats at the performances I attended over the week-end, but audience tastes differ so widely that it is impossible to forecast who will be the aggregate winner by Friday night.

It is a notable fact—and no reflection upon the conspicuous ability of Mr. Oumansky, originator of the Fox Ballet—that the local Foxettes need concede nothing in good looks, versatility or finish to the permanent organizations of similar nature traveling with road companies.

In the hilarious "Ninty-ninth Amendment" Vitaphone skit, leading the auxiliary attractions at the Earle this week, an old timer stages a comeback. The leading man, upon whose advocacy of a legislative gambling reform the punch of the plot depends, is Charles Richman, a competent actor whose career runs back to such popular successes as "The Rose of the Rancho," Frances Starr's first stellar vehicle under the Belasco banner, and "Bought and Paid For," to find its zenith.

The talking pictures may build him another one.

The Loew houses, as you may have observed, are specializing in Sam Hardy this week. The 6-foot comic is importantly cast both with Eddie Dowling in "The Rainbow Man," at the Columbia, and with Josephine Dunn, in support of William Haines in "A Man's Man," at the Palace.

You have to be hardy to play his part in the latter.

Speaking of the Dowlings, a surprise phone call has just apprised me that Pat Dowling, a high executive of the Christie Co., manufacturers of screen comedies of the better sort, is in town and is pointed in the general direction of this office. I know of no one, in the industry or out, more welcome.

Mr. Dowling is one of the lucky ones who snatches himself a trip East from the Coast about once every year. His last visit to the Capital was a year ago last May, when the Paramount-Famous-Lasky organization held its sales convention at the Carlton. The one before that he was almost host to a dinner party in his suite at the Willard.

I said "almost," but must ask you to wait for the story until Mr. Dowling gets out of town, because I can't make his weight!

Mr. Shute, manager of the Little Theater, drops in to advise me that on Friday night at 9:30 o'clock the public will be accorded a preview of the screen production of "Othello," in which Emil Jannings is star. The picture comes highly lauded and will be the attraction for the ensuing week at the tiny Ninth street house.

"Mother's Boy," at the Rialto, consumes a running time, so I am told by a reliable operative of this department, of 1 hour and 25 minutes, during which Morton Downey, the tenor star, sings eleven times—an average of once every half-reel. This is a much more generous display of his voice than Paul Whiteman ever was able to arrange. And he discovered him!

Well, thank goodness, everything is finally out in the yard except weeding the flower beds, planting the gladioli training the new roses, trimming the grass around the walks, pulling up a couple of dead evergreens, thinning out the lilies of the valley and watering the lawn!

EMPLOYE ACCUSES KELLEHER AT TRIAL ON GAMING CHARGE

Man Indicted at Same Time as Sport Follower Testifies for Prosecution.

HIRED TO TAKE BETS ON RACES, HE AVERS

Defense Attempts to Show His Evidence Is Result of Agreement.

Jack B. Kelleher, dapper, gray-haired, "big shot" of the Capital's sporting fraternity, went on trial yesterday before Justice Walter I. McCoy in the District Supreme Court on a two-year gambling charge.

A sensation was sprung during the afternoon's proceedings when Charles D. Payne, who was jointly indicted with Kelleher but pleaded guilty, took the witness stand for the Government.

Payne was subjected to a severe cross-examination by Daniel Thew Wright, chief of the defense counsel, who sought to have the witness admit that his testimony and plea of guilty resulted from an agreement with the district attorney's office.

The charges grew out of a raid at 1413 H street northwest on December 28, 1926. Kelleher, Payne, Charles Turner and Herbert C. Alton were jointly indicted on February 8, 1927, on charges of setting up a gaming table for taking bets on horse races. The charges against Turner and Alton were nolle prossed and, it is expected, they will also testify for the prosecution. The indictment was laid in 25 counts, charging that fifteen bets were made in the H street place during November, 1926.

Payne testified that he was employed by Kelleher in May, 1926, while the defendant had offices in the Investment Building. He said he was paid $50 a week for taking bets on horse races and overseeing a blackjack game from May until September, 1926, while the defendant operated in the Investment Building, and from then until the time of the raid at the H street address.

He identified betting slips, account books, a list of patrons and other equipment, which was alleged to have been seized during the raid, when these were exhibited by Assistant District Attorney William H. Collins, the prosecutor.

Upon cross-examination by Wright, Payne admitted that he pleaded guilty on May 6, 1927, and had not been sentenced since then. He also admitted that without the knowledge of his attorney, Edward F. Golladay, or Kelleher or Wright, he went to the district attorney's office and agreed to plead after a conference with an assistant prosecutor.

Payne admitted that he had been employed at gambling establishments at various times since 1914 and Wright was frustrated by the court when he attempted to show that Payne was discharged from a position he held previous to that time for gambling.

On two occasions, Payne declared he had been advised to plead guilty to the charge by Wright and Kelleher. Although the defense attorney denied the assertion, Chief Justice McCoy declared that the jury was not to accept the attorney's denial unless Wright made it under oath.

The only other witness at the proceedings was Robert L. Shivers, an agent of the Department of Justice, who worked up the evidence which resulted in the raid. Shivers testified that during the month of November, 1926, he made fifteen bets at the H street establishment and identified a slip, upon which he said the bets were recorded. He said that on only a few occasions Kelleher, himself, took his bets.

As a precautionary measure, the jury of four women and eight men were ordered locked up by Chief Justice McCoy. The trial will be resumed today when Payne will be recalled for further cross-examination. Associated with Wright in the defense is Philip Ershler.

Truck Cranked in Gear Goes on Wild Rampage

When cranking a truck, always be sure it is out of gear, advises William Jasper, 2294 Champlain street northwest. He speaks from experience.

Yesterday afternoon the truck he was cranking, parked at Wisconsin avenue and K street northwest and owned by Patrick F. McDermott, started in gear and crossed the street. There it struck and broke down a fire hydrant, struck a gas lamp post, demolished a mail box, and contemptuously bowled over a traffic sign. Jasper was unharmed.

TRADE BOARD MOVES TO ASK FISCAL STUDY

Directors Seek Equable Basis on Budget Apportioning of U. S., District.

VOTE TAX RATE RETENTION

In an effort to arrive at what was termed "an equable apportionment" of the budget for the District of Columbia between the District government and the Federal Government, the board of directors of the Board of Trade and chairmen of subcommittees on the budget, voted last night to petition Congress to authorize President Hoover to appoint a commission of nationally known economists to study and report on the fiscal question between the two. The officials also voted to "retain the tax rate on real estate of $1.70." Congress will be approached within a few days, it was said.

The board and committee chairmen got together at the organization's offices to report on recommendations regarding the budget for 1931. Following the declaration by several chairmen to the effect that their respective committees had concluded it was "impossible to render intelligent service within the limited time," the meeting took a trend toward "the broader question, the equable apportionment of the expense embodied in the budget between the District government and the Federal Government."

After numerous proposals had been made, the expression of the meeting was epitomized in the request for the appointment of a commission by President Hoover through the authority of Congress. The resolution was introduced by E. C. Graham, former president of the Board of Trade, and now a director. It carried unanimously.

E. J. Murphy, president of the board, was in the chair.

Poole Again Chairman Of Charity Chest Drive

John Poole, president of the Federal-American National Bank and chairman of the 1929 Community Chest campaign committee, which successfully conducted the greatest individual campaign for funds ever attempted in Washington, yesterday agreed to accept the chairmanship of the 1930 Community Chest campaign, which is to be conducted November 29 to December 9, inclusive. In accepting the chairmanship, Mr. Poole pledged himself to even greater efforts in behalf of the chest this year.

Frederic A. Delon, president of the Community Chest, expressed intense satisfaction with Mr. Poole's acceptance of the chairmanship.

Motorboat Speed Limit Of 12 Miles Is Advised

A speed limit of 12 miles an hour for speed boats in the Washington Channel, in the Anacostia River above Benning Bridge and in Georgetown Channel above the Memorial Bridge was recommended to the District Commissioners yesterday by William W. Bride, corporation counsel.

The District, Bride told the Commissioners, has authority to regulate the speed of motorboats in the river under the general police authority delegated the Commissioners by Congress in 1892. The District, he said, had control over the Potomac River, within the District line, as far as the high-water mark on the Virginia shore.

Bride's opinion was submitted in response to a query from the wharf committee, of which Roland M. Brennan is chairman, following a complaint from Lieut. E. Harney, commander of the Harbor Precinct, that many complaints had been made that the swell from speed boats had caused considerable damage to boats anchored or docked along the channel.

Capt. Hugh P. Oram, of the Army Engineer Corps, yesterday assumed his duties as Assistant Engineer Commissioner of the District. Capt. Oram, who came here from Fort Humphreys, has been assigned to duty in the New York and other engineer districts of the country. He will have direct supervision over the highway department, the surveyor's office, trees and parkings, sewer and water departments and will serve on the coordinating committee of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

PEABODY OBSERVES 50TH ANNIVERSARY

3,000 Hear Talks by District Commissioners and City School Officials.

VETERAN TEACHER SPEAKS

The District Commissioners, school officials, civic leaders and approximately 3,000 residents of the Northeast section of Washington last night joined in the celebration commemorating the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the Peabody School, Fifth and C streets northeast. The elaborate celebration, one of the largest ever held in this section of the city, was staged in the school grounds.

Peabody is one of the oldest schools in the city. Many of those attending the celebration attended the early classes. A feature of the program was the reading of a history of the school by Mrs. Lula McNally Pain, who attended the school shortly after its founding and who later taught there for a number of years.

A feature of the musical program was the singing of songs of 50 years ago by the "singing mothers" of the Peabody-Hilton Parent-Teacher Association. The mothers were dressed in costumes reminiscent of five decades ago.

The celebration was staged under the auspices of the Stanton Park Citizens Association. The large number of speakers were introduced by A. G. Gregory, president of the association.

Those who spoke included two of the District Commissioners, Proctor L. Dougherty and Col. William A. Ladue, U. S. A.; Henry Gilligan and Mrs. Philip Sidney Smith, members of the Board of Education; Dr. George C. Havenner, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations; Stephen E. Kramer and Robert L. Haycock, assistant superintendents of schools; Dr. E. G. Kimball, former supervising principal of the sixth school division; Charles Hart, principal of the Eastern High School, and Miss Adelaide Davis, supervising principal of the sixth school division. The invocation was offered by the Rev. Alfred E. Barrows, pastor of the Eastern Presbyterian Church.

Miss Frances Hall Gregory, daughter of A. G. Gregory, presented the colors. Music was furnished by the Eastern High School band, under the direction of A. R. Grosskurth. A male quartette, composed of Dr. Sterling Bockeven, Harry Mockbee, Nathan Clark and Paul Tullar, director, sang. They were accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Mockbee.

Professor Russell Funeral Conducted

Widower Says He May Yet Call Inquest in Death of Teacher.

New Haven, Conn., June 10 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The funeral of Prof. Virginia Hopkins Russell, director of the department of physical education at George Washington University, Washington, D. C., was held here today. Interment was in Westside Cemetery, Madison, Conn.

Prof. Russell died in Washington on Friday from intestinal poisoning. Among those who attended the funeral were Dr. Lloyd Marvin, president of the university, and Miss Ann Rose, dean of women. She is survived by her husband, Hilton E. Russell; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard J. Hopkins, of Madison, and three brothers.

Russell, the woman's husband, told Coroner Nevitt that he would probably ask for a formal inquest. A jury has been sworn in and is held in readiness. Russell told the coroner that he would decide definitely by tomorrow if he desires further investigation.

Man Leaves Hospital Despite Brain Injury

Reported to have refused further hospital attention after being informed that he had possible concussion of the brain, Frank Funk, 22 years old, a truck driver for the Salvation Army, left Casualty Hospital yesterday afternoon and returned to his work.

Funk, according to police, was injured when an automobile in which he was riding with George Hodge, 116 B street northwest, struck an electric light pole at the southeast corner of New Jersey avenue and K street northwest in avoiding a collision with another machine.

Funk was treated for shock and possible concussion of the brain by Dr. Louis Jordan.

445 GEORGETOWN U. GRADUATES ADVISED TO AID FELLOW MAN

Students Merely Arise When Names Are Called by Various Deans.

FEGAN SEES COLLEGE MEN WINNING TRUST

35 Candidates Presented for Commissions in R. O. T. C.; Awards Given.

The world is coming to trust in the leadership of college men in the affairs of business, government, and foreign relations as never before, Dr. Hugh J. Fegan, assistant dean of the Georgetown Law School, declared yesterday afternoon in addressing the 445 graduates of Georgetown University at the 130th annual commencement exercises.

"We do not think of these facts in any snobbish or unworthy spirit," Dr. Fegan said in referring to the fact that in the past 60 years the presidents of the United States have been college men and in the last Congress college men made up three-fourths of the membership of the Senate and House.

"If much has been conceded to the college man, much more will be demanded of him," he admonished the graduates. "The only work the world really respects, the only work that brings to the doer of it permanent peace, is work that is unselfish. That spirit is symbolized by John Carroll, the founder of our college."

Graduates Don't Receive Diplomas.

Dr. Fegan, who is a graduate of Georgetown College and its law school, also paid tribute to Edward Douglas White, Georgetown's most illustrious graduate and former Chief Justice of the United States.

For the first time in its history, the graduates did not receive their diplomas in person at the exercises, but stood up, instead, as each name was read by the dean of the department. Only candidates for the degree of philosophy received their diplomas directly from President W. Coleman Nevils, because of the increasingly large number of graduates.

President Nevils, who made a report on his first year as head of the institution, proclaimed March 25, 1930, as founders' day, to be observed annually by the university thereafter in bestowing academic honors on some outstanding alumnus. He gave assurances that the movement for a "greater Georgetown" are approaching fulfillment and soon steps will be taken to add further to the university plant.

Old Alumnus Congratulated.

At the conclusion of the exercises, President Nevils presented a parchment to Thomas C. Blake, of New York, graduate of the class of 1879, who is observing his golden jubilee at the commencement. The parchment was engraved with a message of congratulations from the directors of Georgetown.

The deans of the various departments who presented the candidates for degrees are the Rev. R. Rush Rankin, of the College of Arts and Sciences; Dr John A. Foote, of the Medical School; Dr. George E. Hamilton, of the Law School; Dr. William N. Cogan, of the Dental School, and Dr. William F. Notz, of the School of Foreign Service.

Lieut. Col. Augustus F. Dannemiller, U. S. A., whose assignment in charge of the R. O. T. C. department expires next month, presented 35 candidates for commissions in the Officers Reserve Corps of the Army as follows:

CELEBRATE GOLDEN WEDDING

Commission Will Prune School Board's Estimate

Contention That Body Has No Right to Pare Annual Figures Will Be Ignored in Sending Them on to Budget Bureau, Meeting Indicates.

The contention of the Board of Education that the District Commissioners may not cut the annual estimates submitted by the school authorities will be ignored by the District Commissioners, it was indicated yesterday as the Commissioners met with Superintendent of Schools Frank W. Ballou and his assistant executives to consider the 1931 school estimates.

The job took practically the whole day and was not completed. Another meeting will be had with Ballou and his assistants in the District Building tomorrow morning.

The discussion yesterday had to do with the justification and need for each of the items included in the school estimates by Ballou and approved by the Board of Education, but no effort was made to eliminate any of the items, it was said. At the meeting tomorrow school officials probably will be asked to give the District Commissioners a priority list which may be used in cutting down the estimates.

Despite the attitude of the Board of Education that the Commissioners should confine themselves merely to suggesting the relative importance and priority of the board's estimates when they transmit them to the Budget Bureau, what procedure will not be followed, it was said. There will be cuts made in the school estimates by the Commissioners before they send the estimates to the Budget Bureau.

These cuts will be approximately in proportion to the cuts made in other departments of the District government, it was said, and will bring the school appropriations asked for down to approximately the $12,732,000 estimated for by Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor, in his tentative five-year fiscal program prepared last March.

The three District Commissioners and Daniel E. Garges, secretary of the Board of Commissioners, and Daniel J. Donovan, auditor and budget officer, and Dr. Ballou and Assistant Superintendents of Schools Kramer, Haycock, Willmart and Wilkinson and Business Manager Crane attended the conference yesterday. No members of the Board of Education were present, although in the past it has been customary for the president and the chairman of the finance committee of the board to confer with the Commissioners on estimates.

27 PERSONS JAILED AS POLICE DRY AIDS RAID THREE PLACES

Letterman Squad Takes Rum and Prisoners in City; Escape Tries Fail.

GAMBLING APPARATUS FOUND, MEN REPORT.

Fifteen-Minute Foot Race After One Suspect Brings Disaster to Policeman.

Three raids yesterday afternoon by the police vice squad under Sergt. O. J. Letterman resulted in arrest of 27 persons and seizure of a large quantity of whisky and considerable gaming paraphernalia.

The raids were made at 75 M street southeast, 737 Eleventh street northwest and 1425 Eleventh street northwest.

A fifteen-minute foot race enlivened the last raid. Detective R. J. Cox and J. A. Mostyn represented the police in the field-meet feature. The object of the chase, James A. Brown, colored, 39 years old, was captured.

Mostyn Trips in Race.

During the chase Brown led the two detectives through alleys and over fences. In attempting to hurdle one of the fences Mostyn tripped and fell heavily, being temporarily put out of the race. He recovered sufficiently, however, to aid Cox in the capture.

Brown was charged with sale and possession of whisky. Eleanora Wilson, colored, 20 years old, who was found in the house by the raiders, also was arrested and booked on a similar charge.

Three persons were arrested and 160 quarts of whisky were seized in the M street raid. Those arrested were charged with possession of whisky. They were booked as Emmitt R. Hunt, 27 years old, of Oxon Hill, Md.; William Carwell, colored, 19 years old, of 15 D street southeast, and Anna Simms colored, of 504 High street southeast. A number of other persons were in the house when the police arrived, but escaped. Police reported that the house was supposed to be unoccupied, but that they found it equipped with old-fashioned bar room fixtures.

Electric Door Discovered.

In the raid at 737 Eleventh street, the police reported that they found an electric revolving door. Detective Mostyn gained entrance before he was recognized and held the door open while the other members of the raiding squad entered. Police reported that they arrested 22 persons and seized a quantity of gaming apparatus.

Two of those arrested—Harry Miller, 30 years old, of 1734 P street northwest, and Harry Schmidt, 30 years old, of 1507 M street northwest—were charged with conducting a gaming establishment. They were released on bonds of $2,000 each. The other persons arrested in the raid were released after being ordered to appear in court as witnesses.

Miller, according to the police, attempted to escape over the roofs of adjoining buildings, but was overtaken.

A request to cite Sergt. Letterman for contempt of court for twice failing to execute a warrant for the arrest of Palmer Sowers, of 1332 U street northwest, will be made today in Police Court.

Arrest Twice Refused.

John H. Burnett, counsel for Sowers, filed a contempt petition with Judge Gus A. Schuldt late yesterday at the court. Judge Schuldt declared he would take the matter up with Judge John P. McMahon to decide which one would hear the petition this morning.

The petition stated that a warrant for the arrest of Sowers on a gambling charge was issued to Letterman on May 29. On June 4, the petition declared, Sowers met Letterman in the Police Court Building and asked that the warrant be executed. Letterman refused his request.

Three days later, it is stated in the petition, Sowers went to Letterman's office in the District Building, again requested that he be arrested on the warrant and again was refused.

Burnett will request a magistrate today to set a date for the sergeant to show cause why he should not be judged in contempt.
